British Troops Aid Greece, Take Corfu

Kilted Greeks Repulse Enemy

Royal Navy Beats Back Italian Ships In Battle Over Greek Island; Turks Silent on Aid

(By Associated Press)

ATHENS—British troops were reported today to have landed on the Island of Corfu, in the Ionian sea just off the Greek-Albanian border, as crack Greek kilted troops were into action against attacking Italians along the border.

The reported British landing brought a surge of confidence that real aid was at hand.

It was said the British planned to establish an air base on Corfu from which British planes could help guard Greek cities from attack and, at the same time, be within striking distance for counter attacks on important Italian objectives, just across the Ionian sea.

Reports of the landing on Corfu followed unconfirmed accounts yesterday that British naval units beat back Italian warships approaching the island and that British bluejackets landed at another Greek-defended island nearby.

Government circles declared that attacking Italians striking through passes along the mountainous boundary between Greece and Albania, had been unable to drive back the Greek defenders.

The kilted troops rushed in to hold the Metaxas defense line are known as "Evson"—special units of mountaineers recruited from the district they are now defending. The "Evson" distinguished themselves in the Balkan wars and the Asia Minor campaign.

Increasing confidence was expressed in government circles that the Greek army, rapidly being reinforced by reservists, would be able to hold out defensively and perhaps even have strength to launch a counter offensive into Albania against the Italians.

The reservists rallied to the colors under the old Balkan war slogan of Greek armies, "We will throw them into the sea."

Greeks, who heard nation-wide broadcasts of promises of aid by King George VI and Prime Minister Churchill of England, looked for quick, strong support from British naval units.

Athens was blacked out overnight, and other Greek cities which had their first bombings yesterday worked feverishly to expand hospital facilities and air raid defenses.

The capital passed a quiet night, and no air raid alarms had been sounded up to 9 a. m. today (2 a. m. EST) since 3 p. m. yesterday.

Reports indicated 50 were killed and more than 100 injured in the first bombing of the Greek port of Patras.

In the capital itself, anti-aircraft guns on Mt. Lycabettus, 900 feet above the streets, fired at raiders seen repeatedly over the ancient city once guarded by the walls of Themistocles. No bombs fell on Athens yesterday, but the city's airport was bombed, and other raiders dropped explosives on Piareus, port city for Athens.

Greek troops were said to be clinging stubbornly to strong points guarding mountain passes despite hard Italian thrusts

PRINT 169,000 BALLOTS FOR COUNTY'S VOTE

Election Board Gets Supplies For Election Tuesday; Packs Go Out Soon.

MORE VOTES RECEIVED

500 Ballots Already Marked By Sick, Absentee Voters, Officials Announce.

The Richland county election board began final preparations for the Nov. 5 election today after receiving 169,800 ballots from the printer, the largest order ever delivered to a Richland county election board.

At the same time, A. F. Porter, clerk of the board, announced that a count of registrations in Mansfield showed 21,179 persons eligible to vote, or approximately half the city's population. That figure is 1,000 more than was estimated previously and nearly 4,000 ahead of the registration in 1938, the previous record.

Porter said ballots and supplies will be arranged for distribution this week and sent to the county's 92 voting places Saturday or Monday.

The ballots, which cost $1,187, were printed by the Mansfield Printing company. The order included 44,725 each of the national, state-county, and judicial ballots, 23,650 of the Mansfield one-mill tax levy ballots, 5,475 for the Shelby school levy, 3,100 for the Madison township school bond issue, 1,500 for the Jefferson township levy, 550 each for proposed levies in Plymouth and Butler, 500 for a Sharon township school levy, and 300 for a local option vote in South Boulevards.

Growing interest in the election, now just a week away, was shown today in the 500 sick and absentee ballot applications received by the election board. Only 80 fewer requests have been received now than at the same time.

Greece Latest Engulfed In War

The map at the top shows (1) Italian advance into Greece with Salonika as objective. (2) Units of British fleet advancing to Greece's aid. (3) German troops massed in Rumania. (4) Turkish troop concentrations. At bottom is a recent view of Athens, ancient capital of Greece, now threatened by Italian bombers. A ruthless attack on the city would probably bring destruction of its historic ruins and many cherished relics of antiquity.

FREE PARKING LOTS FOR CITY BEING STUDIED

City Officials Meet Today To Discuss Proposals Made To Relieve Congestion.

FOUR PLOTS CONSIDERED

Mayor Lists Sites Available In Down Town Area; Draw Up New Ordinances.

Mansfield motorists may have free down town parking lots as well as parking meters to solve their parking difficulties in the near future, Mayor W. J. Locke said today.

A meeting of persons interested in the city's traffic problems was held this morning in Locke's office. Attending were the mayor, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton, City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, Police Chief M. K. Bates, Arthur Croak, chairman of city council's traffic committee, Patrolman Frend Boals and Louis Hartman chairman of the Citizens' Traffic committee which made a survey on the problem during the spring and summer.

One of the first problems to be considered was that of free parking lots close to the down town district. Locke said that when the new parking meters are installed, there would be a need for extension of restricted hours and for additional parking space.

He told the group that he believed at least four big lots would be needed. Two are already available, he said. These are the lot adjacent to the City building on South Walnut street on which the city already has an option, and a big lot at the south end of Walnut near West First street. He said this would be rented to the city for a nominal sum and would accommodate several hundred cars.

Two Mansfield Men, One From Shelby Drawn

Draftees In Richland County Begin To Receive Order Numbers As U. S. Starts Lottery; Full Lists To Be Posted and Published

By the free democratic method of lottery, America chose today the order in which young men shall be called to the colors so that this nation may continue to live in freedom and peace.

Shortly after noon in Washington today, Secretary of War Henry Stimson, blindfolded, reached into a huge fishbowl, and withdrew from it a blue capsule.

It contained the number 158—and some 6,500 young men between the ages of 21 and 36 had automatically been placed at the top of what is known as the order list.

In Richland county, three men held No. 158, and thus will be the first men to receive questionnaires that will determine their classification—whether they will be called up for service or deferred, because of dependents or other reasons.

The three are Kenneth Raymond Cartnal, 218 West Third street, in District No. 1 (Wards 1, 2, 3 and 4); Kenneth LeRoy Troupe, rear 196 East Fourth street, in District No. 2 (Wards 5 and 6 and Madison township), and Merlin Edward Ruble, R. D. 1, Shelby, in District No. 3 (Richland county outside the city and Madison township).

The second number drawn was 192, and three Richland county men became No. 2 on the order list. They are John Mandell Miller, 176 Coul street, in District No. 1; Henry Lane, Geddes avenue, in District No. 2, and Clarence Albert Stotts, R. D. 6, Mansfield, in District No. 3.

The second draft number was drawn by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

Attorney General Robert Jackson drew the third number, which was 8,239. But because no districts are known to have that many registrants, it was believed that no one was called up on his draw. In Richland county, numbers run only as high as 3,424, in District No. 1, and no Richland county men were affected by it.

The fourth number was 6,620, drawn by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, and again no Richland county men were affected.

High numbers were drawn steadily until the 19th draw, when No. 105 was taken from the fishbowl. Three more Richland county men were on the order list.

Those three were Louis John Beal, 325 North Main street, District No. 1; William Kopcial, R. D. 4, Mansfield, District No. 2, and William Raymond Kauf, Bellville, District No. 3.

President Roosevelt, after starting the draft ceremony with a radio broadcast, announced the first five numbers drawn, and then left Washington departmental auditorium. Announcing of the numbers then was taken over by Major Shattuck of the army.

The drawing of names was expected to go on until midnight or after—at any rate, until all of the blue capsules

N-J to Post Order Numbers Tonight, Publish List Tomorrow

The News-Journal today is carrying, as far as it is possible to do so with regard to edition times, the order numbers of draftees, as they are drawn in Washington, together with the names of the draftees in the three Richland county draft districts.

Tomorrow, The News-Journal will carry the entire list of order numbers as they are drawn in the lottery. It will be impossible, however, in the longer list, to include the names of the drafted men. However, to facilitate the finding of order numbers, they will be printed in blocks of 50 in the exact order drawn as they apply to Richland county. Thus, draftees, whose serial numbers were carried in The News-Journal Sunday, will have no difficulty in discovering their standing in the draft order, once they have found their order numbers.

As a further service to registrants The News-Journal will post in its windows this afternoon and tonight, order numbers drawn in Washington as soon as they are received. Special wire service has been arranged from Washington to furnish numbers as rapidly as they are drawn. Service will be maintained until the entire draft has been completed.

Registrants thus will have two means of ascertaining their standing in the draft order—through the numbers posted in The News-Journal windows today and tonight and in the columns of The News-Journal today and tomorrow.

GUARANTEE: Russia To Help Turkey Defend Dardanelles

(By International News Service)

ISTANBUL—Soviet Russia has offered Turkey a firm guarantee of armed assistance in event of a German thrust against the Dardanelles, it was learned on reliable authority in Istanbul today.

The promise has been given without any reservations whatsoever, informed quarters said.

These same circles declared that for the present at least, Turkey will not enter the war against Italy on the side of Greece. Contrary to published reports, the mutual assistance treaty between Greece and Turkey excludes the necessity of Turkish collaboration in case of Italian aggression.

This country, however, is keeping a watchful eye on Bulgaria. Should the latter attack Greece in an effort to obtain Thracian territory, which she has long sought, Turkey will go to the aid of Greece immediately.

The Turkish army remains on an "alert" basis. Military morale is of the highest, and the troops are described as "keen as mustard and full of confidence."

RETURN: Nazi Raiders Again Bomb London In Short Attacks

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Three air alarms, all of brief duration, signalled the Nazis' return to the attack on Britain today after a night in which Germany apparently was the heavier sufferer.

Numerous bombs fell in the London area in the rapid succession of short-lived daylight alarms and several persons were known to have been killed.

German shipyards were the chief targets of "heavy and successful" night air raids on Germany's biggest ports, including Kiel, Wilhelmshaven, Bremen, Hamburg, Emden and Cuxhaven, the air ministry reported.

Besides, it said, 19 air bases in Germany and in Nazi-occupied territory, "numerous anti-aircraft batteries," shipping in the "invasion port" of Boulogne, oil plants, railroad and industrial centers were attacked.

One British bomber was admitted to have been lost.

Another steep increase in the rate of British merchant losses was disclosed by the admiralty with announcement that 45 vessels totaling 198,030 tons were sunk by "enemy action" during the week ending Oct. 21.

This was the second worst week the British have acknowledged, exceeded only by the week of the withdrawal of Dunkerque last June, when 260,984 tons of shipping were listed as lost. The previous average had been 57,000 tons.

The first daylight alarm in London followed an interval of several hours after the last "all clear" on the 52nd straight night of air attack.

The government said the night raids caused a number of casualties, including some fatalities, in the London area. Shops, houses and other buildings were damaged, and a few fires were started, but these were reported extinguished, or brought under control.

In a Midlands town, a communique said, a few casualties resulted from a night raid during which Nazi airmen loosed a large quantity of incendiary bombs, causing many fires.

Kennedy returned home by Pan-American Airways Clipper last Sunday.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — George A. Straim, state industrial relations director, prepared today to call a public hearing on a proposed minimum wage scale of $13 to $16 per week for Ohio beauty operators.

The sliding scale was recommended yesterday by a special nine-member board studying the question. Only dissenting vote was cast by Arch Fogle, St. Clairsville, head of the Ohio Independent Beauty Shops association, who argued that "lots of shops" can't pay the proposed scale and stay in business.

U. S. Worried Over French Fleet Use By Axis Powers

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States, concerned over potential threats to American interests, was reported in informed quarters today to have asked France to supply official information concerning any change in the status of the French fleet or strategic French colonies, especially Dakar.

American naval and military experts considered that relinquishment of the French fleet or the Dakar air and naval base to Germany would be detrimental both to American interests and to the security of the western hemisphere.

It was learned authoritatively that the state department had approached the French government on the question of the French navy "before and since the armistice" and, while there was no official confirmation, it was understood that renewed representation had been made in recent days.

The French fleet today, according to the latest unofficial figures which make allowance for all war and post-armistice losses, consists of 192 warships (64 of them still under construction) and could play an important or even decisive role in the Mediterranean or off Dakar.

President Roosevelt's message to Marshal Petain, chief of the French state, sent last week at the moment the 84-year-old hero of Verdun was conferring with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, was interpreted as designed to reinforce the previously expressed questions and views transmitted by Secretary Hull. No official information on this subject, however, has been released.

READY: President Declares Young Men Prepared To Help

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt, opening the national draft lottery, said today that America's young men "are ready, as all of our country must be, to play their part" in the nation's defense.

He spoke in a government auditorium beside a huge bowl full of draft numbers. The order of their drawing will determine the order of service of a possible 17,000,000 men in the nation's first peacetime conscription.

Mr. Roosevelt said "that in the present world the survival of liberty and justice is dependent on strength to defend against attack.

"We are mustering all our resources, manhood and industry and wealth to make our nation strong in defense," Mr. Roosevelt said after telling the audience of more than 1,300 that "this is a most solemn ceremony."

"For recent history proves all too clearly, I am sorry to say," the president continued, "that only the strong may continue to live in freedom and in peace."

"In the considered opinion of the congress of the United States," he said, "this selective service provides the most democratic as well as the most efficient means for the mustering of our man-power."

To the men who will be called for service under the draft, the president said: "You have the confidence, and the gratitude, and the love of your countrymen. We are with you in the task which enlists the services of all Americans—the task of keeping the peace in this new world."

Bricker Promises No New Taxes; Davey Hits 'Profits'

VERBAL BLOWS BY CANDIDATES ENLIVEN RACE

Governor's Former Law Firm Accused of Profiteering on State Business.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Although their contest is overshadowed by Ohio's importance as a presidential campaign battleground, the state's two candidates for governor are still swapping verbal punches.

Governor Bricker, Republican, in his weekly radio address last night, promised Ohio would not be "haunted" by the specter of higher taxes if he is re-elected and again review his economy record.

Former Gov. Martin L. Davey, his Democratic opponent, also addressing a radio audience, claimed the former law firm of Bricker was receiving "profits out of all reason" from representing clients with business before state boards and departments.

"In all the time that I have been interested in public affairs, I have never seen a more immoral procedure . . . His secretary as a member of that firm is an immediate beneficiary," Davey declared.

Bricker asserted that "the proposal of my opponent to wipe out one-third of the state's income (by repeal of the sales tax) would utterly destroy the present stability of the state government."

He claimed that more efficient management of the state liquor department during his administration will produce during his first term $4,350,000 more money for old age pensions.

He said Davey was attempting "to create a smoke screen for the purpose of diverting public attention from the record."

Davey charged that Bricker, during his former tenure as attorney general, "raided the closed banks with outrageous attorney fees." He accused the governor with an "appalling shakedown" of state employes for campaign funds and said Bricker's campaign chest was "several times larger" than any ever spent before in Ohio.

Wendell L. Willkie's third—and probably final—invasion of Ohio in his drive for votes highlighted today's activity. The Republican nominee appears at Jackson for two hours around noon.

One of the few direct debates between opposing candidates for major offices occurs in Columbus when Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland and Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster argue issues in their contest for U. S. senator.

It was announced that Democratic National Committeeman Charles Sawyer will go on the radio starting tomorrow for daily talks to instruct voters in the mechanics of this year's separation of the state and national ballots in Ohio. He will advise citizens to vote "the little ballot" which contains the presidential candidates ahead of the "longer" ballots.

Lewis, Hillman Stage Race For Steel Contracts

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President John L. Lewis of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and Sidney Hillman, labor coordinator for the national defense commission, were reported today to be engaged in a race to announce inauguration of collective bargaining negotiations with Bethlehem and Republic Steel companies.

CIO headquarters here buzzed with rumors that one or both of the "Little Steel" companies would announce their willingness to sit around a conference table with the CIO's steel workers organizing committee before the end of the week.

Reliable CIO sources confirmed reports that Lewis, who is seeking to win organized labor support for Wendell L. Willkie, has ordered that informal talks with the two companies proceed at top speed in an effort to open formal negotiations.

It's quiet these days in the Richland county marriage license bureau after two big months. Clerks in the office attribute the drop to the belief among young men that it's too late now to escape the draft by getting married. With October nearly over, only 43 licenses have been requested in the county during the month. There were 75 applications in August and almost as many last month.

Postoffice officials couldn't make up their minds today whether the postoffice had more "headaches" with the annual Christmas rush or with last-minute mailing of circulars, post cards, and campaign literature by political candidates. For the past month a steady stream of "Vote-For-Me" literature has been pouring into the postoffice, and it is expected that this week-end it will be even heavier. General opinion at the postoffice this morning was that the only difference between the Christmas and campaign rushes was that the Christmas rush lasts a little bit longer.

MADISON OPENS BOND CAMPAIGN

Meetings Scheduled To Boost Passage of $290,000 Issue At Polls Next Week.

An intensive campaign in behalf of a proposed $290,000 bond issue is under way in Madison township, Olan LaRue, superintendent of schools, said today.

Meetings have been conducted or will be held before election in every community in the school district with Supt. LaRue and members of the township board of education outlining the purposes of the bond issue and urging voters to support it.

The bonds, which would be paid off over a period of 24 years, would provide funds for a 12-room addition to Madison high school, construction of new grade buildings at Woodville and Lincoln Heights, and improvements at the East Mansfield school.

The Madison school district has been divided into campaign areas and workers have been assigned to make house-to-house calls to ask voters to support the bond issue.

"We intend to contact every voter in the district in behalf of the bond proposal," Supt. LaRue said. "The reaction to the proposal so far has been very favorable," he added.

The Madison school paper will issue a special edition Thursday in support of the bonds, and copies of the paper will be distributed to every parent in the district.

The bonds, like the $550,000 issue passed in Mansfield two years ago, need a 65 per cent majority vote to pass.

Supt. LaRue pointed out that the interest rate on bonds now is the lowest in recent years, while war conditions are almost certain to boost the cost of building materials, making the cost of buildings higher later on.

POLICE SET UP 'BLACK LIST' FOR THOSE IGNORING TICKETS

Motorists with out-of-town licenses who take advantage of the immunity usually granted visitors to the city will find themselves "black-listed" on police records, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said today after two violators had paid a total of 17 traffic violation tickets.

Boyd Crall, now living in Mansfield, but with a Columbus address and license number, paid $11 yesterday on that many traffic tickets, all issued for parking in safety zones and restricted zones. David Fuller, whose car has a South Carolina license, paid $6 for being ticketed six times recently for parking overtime.

Bates said today that Mansfield, like most cities, has an unwritten courtesy rule for out of town and state cars, and that every consideration will continue to be shown them—so long as they do not become intentional repeaters.

"A lot of out of town motorists—especially salesmen—know this rule is in effect and they deliberately take advantage of it. From now on when a motorist proves to be a consistent violator of our city traffic rules, he will be placed on our 'black list' of habitual offenders on traffic regulations."

Bates said most out of town motorists have an idea that when they receive a traffic ticket in some city or town in which they are stopping, all they have to do is tear it up and it is forgotten.

"On the contrary, we keep the duplicate ticket for every one issued. Maybe a visitor comes to town regularly every week or every month on business and pays no attention to our parking regulations. He gets tickets but tears them up, because he thinks we won't go to the expense of trying to collect an out of town ticket. But he'll be back in town again and then we'll get him by having his car towed to a garage where it will be held until he pays for all of his tickets, including the towing cost."

Crall had 10 tickets against him before his car was found in a safety zone yesterday and towed to a garage.

NEW WEAPONS EN ROUTE TO OHIO TROOPS

Garand Rifles and Anti-Tank Guns Included In Arms Consignment.

(By United Press)

CAMP SHELBY, Miss. Defensive tactics against the swift-moving mechanized implements of modern warfare were stressed today in the classroom schooling of officers of the 37th Ohio division.

The lesson that France learned tragically on the field of battle will be hammered into the minds of the men planning the strategy for some 9,000 Ohio National guardsmen now in federal army service for at least one year.

"Special emphasis is being placed on anti-mechanization combat in each of the eight classes for officers this week," Lieut. Col. L. C. Chalmers, Columbus, senior instructor, said.

As the officer's "school" went into its second day, word was received by Captain Neal Moler, acting ordnance officer for the 37th division, that the first consignment of modern weapons was en route to Ohio troops.

The new arms will include 1,500 Garand semi-automatic rifles, a dozen 37 mm. anti-tank guns, two dozen 60 mm. mortars, a dozen 81 mm. mortars and four 77 mm. guns on carriages.

"The artillery pieces are the most modern the war department has developed," Captain Moler said "We have not had this type of equipment before and our officers and men will require special training to handle it."

Courses in the officers' training this week include artillery, rifle use, signal communications, use of compasses, field glasses and maps (combat intelligence); operation and maintenance of motor vehicles, combat engineering, chemical warfare.

While 500 officers attended these courses preparatory to instructing the enlisted men next week, the men went through marching drills under the supervision of a skeleton staff of officers.

Tomorrow, the Ohio soldiers begin to move into the permanent quarters erected for them here. The moving will take a week or 10 days.

The "permanent" quarters are tents but they have skeleton wood frames, siding built up three feet, wooden floors and screens.

'MAN OF MONTH'

Mansfielder Honored by Farm Bureau for Sales Record.

Showing the best sales record in a nine-state area, Vance Clever, manager of the Richland county farm bureau, has been awarded the "Man of the Month" honor for September by the Farm Bureau insurance agencies.

Clever, who started to sell insurance only four months ago as a part of his farm bureau job, topped all other farm bureau insurance representatives in Ohio and eight other mid-western states in September.

He sold 43 automobile insurance policies, $14,667 worth of life insurance, $39,000 worth of fire insurance, and handled six general liability applications.

Clever, who lives in Springfield township, is the first Richland county man to win the honor.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

MISS MIDNIGHT'S DIARY:

Dear Diary: I am rather happy over the fact that there is a situation brewing in cafe society which threatens to equal, or even top, the James McKinley Bryant-Arline Judge-Ann St. George Thompson-Huntington Hartford mix-up, which I usually refer to as the Characters in Search of an Author.

Well, now the midnighters have a new set of characters, just as involved, just as amusing, just as confusing. Number one, and more or less central character, is Marie Spaulding, who carols at the new Fairway Yacht club and who for several seasons has been known as a "society songstress." Characters number 2 and 3 are her two current beaux, Tommy Chatfield (a ward of the Marquis de Cuevas) and Jack Dryden, 3rd, a member of the Yale crew. Character 4 is Amanda Cecil, who used to be Tommy Chatfield's best girl. Characters 5 and 6 are Jesse Spaulding, 3rd, who used to be Marie's husband, and Vivi Fairchild, who is currently Jesse's fiance.

A night-by-night description of their various activities goes something like this:

Saturday: Jack Dryden and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Livermore, jr., were at Marie's table when Tommy Chatfield entered, saw that the object of his affections was busy entertining friends, and sped out of the club. (Amanda Cecil had come early with Henry Daniels and hadn't seen Tommy Chatfield—but Tommy Mitchell, one of Chatfield's best friends, joined her table.)

Sunday: Amanda Arrived with Mitchell.

Jack Dryden came in with Jaro Fabry.

While Marie was rhumbaing with Dryden, Chatfield joined Amanda and Mitchell and wound up dancing with Amanda.

Monday: No game today.

Tuesday: With Dryden back at Yale, lookouts expected all to be serene and uneventful, but Jesse Spaulding (the ex-husband, in case you are having trouble keeping score) arrived with Vivi Fairchild and some friends, and Amanda, arrive with a large party.

Tommy Chatfield arrived, too.

While Marie sat down to say how-dey-do to Jesse and Vivi, Tommy Chatfield danced with Amanda.

After Amanda's party left, Tommy, Marie, Jesse and Vivi all would up together at the bar.

Wednesday: Tommy Chatfield arrived with Amanda Cecil.

Further results will be published as the crisis mounts and the winds shift.

Highlight of the festivities at Spivy's Roof Monday night was the appearance of Frank Parker, the tenor, with his new heartbeat, Bunny Water. Bunny, who is one of the town's most beautiful show girls, is also well over six feet tall—and she seemed almost too big for the little room, if not for Mr. Parker.

But Don Meade, the pint-sized horse pilot drifted in, and since he is as short as Bunny is tall, the room kept its equilibrium. Kept it, that is, until Carol Bruce came in wearing a complicated red hat that looked like three hats, one on top of the other.

Spivy tried to get Eddy Duchin to play the piano, and Eddy kept refusing. "I'll get him to play," Count Dekker whispered finally, and he sat down at the piano.

He played so badly that Duchin couldn't stand it. He just got up and displaced the Count and browsed through some Kern and Gershwin melodies for a whole half hour, while the room remained at pin-drop attention.

Mark Hellinger, a picture of plumpish, sun-kissed health, strolled in with his pretty wife, Gladys Glad. Gladys had on what seemed to be a style note: A quarter-moon veil that just covered her eyes. Very exotic.

All kinds of things were going on at El Morocco. For instance:

1—Tommy Goodwin, the golfer, arrived with a big silver cup he had just won at the Winged Foot Golf Club. Ciro, the wine steward, filled this with champagne and it was passed around the big round table like a loving cup.

2—Jack Oakie arrived in street clothes and got an attack of cold feet when he saw everyone dressed. "Oh dear, I could never go in there dressed like this," he said shyly. It took the combined efforts of Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and John Rerona to convince him not to flee.

3—The amusing Lady Douglas (wife of Lord Cecil Douglas), who has just arrived from England told a friend.

"Please introduce me as Mrs. Jones so I can have some fun."

4—Maury Paul, arbiter of cafe society, arrived carrying some unusual accessories, unwrapped. They were (a) one can of coffee; (b) one dented can of beans.

Maury had won them at a charity benefit.

5—Playboy Elliott Sperber drove up on the sidewalk under El Morocco's swank awning in a miniature station wagon, got out, and politely assisted from the strange little vehicle Jacqueline Knight, who was wearing a bunch of orchids almost as big as Elliott's chariot.

I told you the town is getting gay, didn't I?

TOOK ADVICE

Woman Shot First, Asked Cop How He Felt Afterward.

UHRICHSVILLE —(AP)— Patrolman David Hibbs, recovering from shotgun wounds, today wondered whether he had given the right advice to a woman who wanted to protect herself from prowlers.

Hibbs had shown her how to use a rifle and had advised her to "shoot first and ask questions afterward" if prowlers continued to molest her. Last night she shot Hibbs as he walked his beat near her home.

Nick Weber Holding Own on Undefeated Tennessee Football Combine.

By CHARLES MARTIN
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

REPORTS have been circulating about the alleged "free-for-all" fight that followed the recent Butler-Loudonville high school football contest played at Butler.

According to the latest dope from Loudonville, there was no trouble . . . Maybe some of the fans became excited during the heat of the game which was won by Loudonville, but Coach John Kerekes of the Red Birds and Tony Grant, school superintendent, failed to see the mixup . . .

Meanwhile, Mentor Bob Burgett of Butler, who saw the fight, still sticks to his decision . . . and says that athletic relations between the two schools are finished.

Nick Weber, ersthile Mansfield high football and basketball star, is holding his own on the undefeated and untied Tennessee grid team . . . Weber, a halfback, played almost three quarters when the Vols stopped Alabama . . . It was his blocking that was partially responsible for both of Johnny (G W T W) Butler's touchdown jaunts . . . Shelby High's Defeat Surprises Followers.

Shelby high's defeat at the hands of the Marion Harding Presidents last week was something of a surprise to Shelby fans . . . The Whippets appeared to be headed for the first undefeated season since 1938, and Marion, which was upset by a weak Bucyrus team two weeks ago, wasn't conceded much of a chance of knocking Shelby out of the unbeaten list . . . The Whippets still hold the lead in the North Central Ohio conference race . . . Shelby had won six straight tussles . . .

A new spirit exists in the ranks of the Automotive Supply semi-pro football team today as it returns to the practice field . . . The club scored its initial victory of the season last Sunday by beating the Sandusky Maroons 14 to 6, on the Sandusky high school field . . .

In only one game have the Supplies played on a private gridiron this fall . . . The rest of the tilts were on high school fields . . . Against the Akron Awnings the Mansfield outfit battled at League park in Akron.

Probably many of the fans who witnessed the Mansfield-Massillon tilt at Stadium field Friday night are wondering why the undefeated Tigers always kicked out of bounds on the kickoffs . . .

Coach Paul Brown instructed his youngsters to do just that . . . He knew about the double-lateral the Tygers use and by kicking the pigskin out he didn't have to spend time in pre-game practice in setting up a defense to stop the play . . .

Cornell Is Still Leading

Notre Dame, Michigan Hold Down Second, Third Place In Ratings.

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK—(AP)—It still is Cornell, Notre Dame and Michigan, in that order, when the country's sports editors get down to appraising the top-flight college football teams

For the second straight week of the Associated Press ranking poll, these three head the list—Cornell, apparently already "over the hump" en route to its second straight all-winning season, and Notre Dame and Michigan, with their toughest assignments to come.

This Saturday, however, all three should be safe Cornell isn't likely to have much trouble with Columbia, despite Lion Coach Lou Little's crack that "We'll try not to turn it into a rout when we go to Ithaca" Notre Dame probably will spend most of its Saturday afternoon trying to hold down the score against Army, and Michigan will be safest of all. The Wolverines will rest for a week in preparation for Minnesota, Northwestern and Ohio State

For the rest of the first ten—eleven actually, with Clemson and Georgetown tying for last place—this Saturday's schedule holds considerably more danger.

The A-1 attraction of the day will be played at Evanston Ill., between Minnesota, ranked fourth, and Northwestern, eighth on the list The fifth-place Texas Aggies will battle Arkansas, surprise conqueror of Mississippi last Saturday; Stanford will meet U C L A, beaten five straight by a total margin of 22 points Tennessee, which was unimpressive against Florida, will have to do better to whip Louisiana State Boston college, after two straight soft touches, will find a little rougher going against Manhattan; Clemson will have its hands full and possibly more with Tulane, and Georgetown will stack its record of 21 games without defeat against comebacking Syracuse

Cornell and Notre Dame dominated this week's first and second-place voting, the Big Red with 81½ of the 160 first-place votes and 48 for second the Irish with 10½ for first and 46 for second

Georgetown and Clemson were the newcomers to the front rank in their deadlock they took the place of Pennsylvania bounced out of the select list by Michigan

The rankings (points based on 10-9-8-7, etc., basis, first-place votes in parentheses)

1 Cornell (81½) 1,361.5 2 Notre Dame (10½) 1,315.5 3 Michigan (16) 1,208 4 Minnesota (13) 1,044. 5 Texas A & M (9) 970 6 Stanford 778 7 Tennessee 665 8 Northwestern (1) 639 9 Boston college (2) 401 10 Tie between Clemson (2) and Georgetown 132

Second ten: 12, Nebraska 42; 13, Washington 35; 14, Navy 23; tie for 15, Pennsylvania and Southern Methodist, 17 each; 17 Detroit, 11; tie for 18 Penn State and Duke, 10 each; tie for 20, Mississippi State and Santa Clara, 9 each.

Also ran: Mississippi and Ohio State, Boston U, 7 Arkansas, Colorado 6, Tennessee, Rice, Louisiana State, North Carolina 5, Colgate, Fordham, Georgia Tech 4, Auburn, Missouri, Oregon State, Villanova 3, Duquesne, Holy Cross, Iowa, Marquette, Oklahoma, Purdue 2, Alabama, Baylor, Fordham, Kansas State, Manhattan, Oregon, Texas Christian 1.

SHILOH TACKLES PLYMOUTH

The Shiloh high six-man grid machine will seek its fifth win of the season at 2.45 p m Thursday when it meets Plymouth in a tilt at Shiloh The Drummer Boys have dropped one game this season

Mansfielder Faces Akron Boxer Tonight.

Paul Carbetta of Mansfield and Buddy Smallwood of Akron meet in a flyweight amateur boxing match on the Medical Fund show at Akron tonight. The two lads will be in the feature bout. Carbetta will be seeking his first win over Smallwood, who beat the Mansfielder in a semi-final bout of the Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament this spring.

East, Midwestern Attractions to Grid Table For Saturday

Football card for Saturday, Nov. 3, starts the second half season with two eastern games, two midwest tilts and one southeastern duel in the spotlight. Fordham's Rams try to keep going against the tough North Carolina team in an intersectional fray in New York. Cornell and Columbia meet at Ithaca in an eastern standout. The Northwestern-Minnesota clash at Evanston is the midwestern tidbit with Oklahoma and Nebraska colliding at Norman. In the southeast, Tennessee meets its stiffest opposition to date against Louisiana State. Notre Dame's tussle with Army in New York will draw a big crowd but Army's poor showing takes the edge off this.

Three Teams Have Chance to Share NCO Grid Loop Title

SHELBY — The race for the championship of North Central Ohio football conference was thrown wide open last week-end with the 19 to 6 defeat of Shelby Whippets by Marion Harding high

Three teams now have a chance to at least tie for the title.

They are Shelby which leads the league by winning three out of four conference games, Marion and Bucyrus, each having won two games out of three

The Whippets, who lost their first game in seven starts last week, have only one more league contest to play. It is scheduled Nov. 8 at Galion. Galion is the leagues weakest team The Orangemen have lost all three of its league games.

Marion Harding has to play only two more games in the conference. They are with Galion Friday night at the Presidents' field and the following week at Mt. Vernon.

Bucyrus, which upset the football dope two weeks ago by defeating Marion for its first loss in 12 games, has two tough games to win in order to share the conference title. It plays Mt. Vernon and Ashland on its own field Nov. 1 and Nov. 8 respectively.

All three of these teams must win all of their remaining games to split the championship.

* * *

The other two league teams, Mt Vernon and Ashland, have not fared so well. Mt. Vernon has lost two games and won one, while Ashland has lost two and won two.

Bucks Prepare For Indiana

Controversy Still Raging Over Cornell Game.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Buckeyes, beaten three straight times, prepared today for Saturday's game here with the Indiana Hoosiers while controversy raged on over the accusation that Cornell Coach Carl Snavely directed his team to victory over the Bucks by signals from the sidelines

L. W. St. John, Ohio State athletic director, protested the asserted signaling in a letter to Asa S. Bushnell of New York, executive director of the Eastern Intercollegiate association.

St John said that Francis A Schmidt, Buckeye coach, asked officials before the game last Saturday to be on the alert for signals from the sidelines, but William H. (Red) Friesell, jr, who refereed the contest, which Cornell won 21 to 7, said he saw no coaching from the bench.

Snavely said only that he "adjusted his team to the Ohio defense after spotting the Buckeyes' weaknesses quickly."

Meanwhile, Schmidt made two major shifts in the Ohio State lineup in an effort to find a winning combination with which to face Indiana, Illinois and Michigan remaining foes on the Buck schedule

Charlie Anderson, Massillon Negro, was replaced at left end by Ed Massie of Wellston, O., and Paul Sweeney of Cleveland, was given the second-string halfback post as understudy to Jimmy Straubaugh.

Any team's play in the Cornell game did not impress the coaching staff, so Massie, who failed to make the grade as halfback and tackle and is given a chance at the left end spot.

LaChappelle Annexes Match

Toronto Wrestler Defeats Miller in Show.

Taking the decision in the first two falls Maurice LaChappelle of Toronto, leading lightweight contender, won his bout over Walter Miller in the feature match of Bob Steele's weekly wrestling show last night at the Dochla-Saprana Athletic club

In the first bout LaChappelle took Miller with a series of blows to the body, finally downing him with a body smother, but in the second fall he ran into a little more trouble from Miller but finally downed him with an arm lock.

Both preliminary matches on the card ended in a draw In a 10-minute exhibition bout, Jack Kennedy and George Kentosh both of Mansfield, fought their full time for a draw, and Buck Weaver and Billy Fox finished their time for a draw.

The Black Panther took the decision over Tiger Moore in the semi-final match, downing him in the second bout with a hip headlock

Bellville Out to Even Score With Madison

By BOB FLOHR

THE Bellville high school Bluejays will be out to even the score with the Rams of Madison high school when the two elevens meet at 2.30 p m Saturday at Bellville for their annual gridiron tussle.

The tilt is being played on Saturday afternoon because of the annual North Eastern Ohio Teachers' association convention being held this week-end in several Ohio cities.

For the past two years Bellville has gone through the season without losing a contest until the Madison game, and each year the Rams scored an upset by defeating the Bluejays to knock them from the undefeated and untied Ohio scholastic list.

This year Bellville is set to repay Madison for the 1938 and 1939 losses, and believes it has a better than even chance since Madison has yet to win a single game, having dropped seven straight.

Madison lost its seventh game last week when it was defeated by Marion St. Marys 6 to 0 Last Saturday Bellville was trounced by Mt. Blanchard 24 to 0 for its second setback of the season.

Other games this week scheduled for Thursday afternoon will find Butler at Danville, Granville at Fredericktown, and New London at Wellington.

Night games include Mt. Gilead at Loudonville and Crestline at Lima South. Willard travels to Port Clinton Saturday for an afternoon tilt.

John Simpson Gridders Entertain Sandusky Club.

Coach Bob DeHaven's John Simpson Junior high school football forces will attempt to scribble another victory into the record books by entertaining the Sandusky Junior high combine in a tilt scheduled to get under way at 3:30 p. m. Combines Clash In Feature Tilt On Tiger Field

Undefeated Washington High Expected to Face Greatest Test of Season Friday.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—That long awaited clash between the state's two powerhouse high school elevens—Massillon and Toledo Waite—comes up Friday night at Massillon, so last week's happenings on the scholastic fields aren't exciting much comment

The mighty Massillons boasting 30 straight victories, will entertain the Waites, winners of 18 in a row, before some 21,000 fans. The Stark county crew, unscored on while piling up 389 points against seven foes this year, is favored heavily over the invading Toledo squad, but the Buckeye Bowl champions of 1939 are expected to give the Tigers their toughest opposition of the campaign.

The two Titans rolled on to their seventh wins of the year last week-end, Massillon beating Mansfield 38 to 0 while Waite was shoving Toledo Devilbiss out of the undefeated class, 19 to 14. Mansfield came up with a 4-4-2-1 and a 4-3-1-2-1 defensive setup to hold the Tigers to their lowest score of the year.

Several other squads kept pace with the two headliners. Among the others taking their seventh victories were West Jefferson (34, Columbus Holy Family 6); Newark (33, Lancaster 6), Oxford McGuffey 21, Dayton, Ky., 0); Columbus North (18, Columbus East 0); Cuyahoga Falls (14, Akron North 6), Xenia, O. S. & S. O. Home (75, West Carrollton 7), Hudson (61, Copley 6), Bexley (24, Columbus Academy 0), and Arlington (13, Van Buren 0)

Five teams, scrapping to make it seven in a row, fell by the wayside They were Tiffin Jr Home (0, Findlay 14); Toledo Devilbiss (13, Toledo Waite 19); Versailles (6, Vandalia Butler 13); Lorain (18, Lakewood 20), and Shelby (6, Marion 19).

Boasting six victories were such squads as Pandora, Hillsboro, East Liverpool, Orrville, Springfield Central Catholic and Dennison, while McConnellsville has won five.

Other teams beaten for the first time included Augusta, Washington Court House, and Cleveland Collinwood.

Of the teams having seven wins Bexley and Massillon are the only ones with unsullied goal lines Bexley has counted 160 points Lorain scored on by Sandusky two weeks ago for the first time this year in winning its 20th straight contest, saw its long streak ended by the scrapping Lakewood crew, 20 to 18, inability to get the extra points causing the downfall.

Athie Garrison, Canton McKinley's Negro halfback, continued to pace the individual scorers with 108 points, on 17 touchdowns and six extra points He romped for 19 and 46 yards for a pair of touchdowns last week-end as the Bulldogs beat Alliance 25 to 0 to run their record to six wins and a tie.

Horace Gillom, Massillon's huge colored All-Ohio end, raced for one touchdown against Mansfield to hike his total to 90 points. Eugene Fekete Findlay's triple-threat fullback, has 79 points for six games, five of them winners.

Other week-end stars were Jack (Speedo) Harris, Zanesville back who accounted for both Blue Devil touchdowns, one on a 65-yard jaunt, as his team lost to Marietta 20-14. Chuck Deshler, East Liverpool halfback, who set up the two Potter touchdowns on runs of 35 and 15 yards (he's gained 497 yards in 54 attempts this year).

John Richardson, Chillicothe's fine sophomore, who scored the first six-pointer of the year on the home field as the Cavaliers ended a six-game losing streak to beat Oak Hill 20 to 0.

* * *

Down in Cincinnati Elder high made it four wins and one tie by pushing Woodward out of the unbeaten class, 14-6, while Withrow ran its string to four wins and two deadlocks with a 13-0 conquest of Norwood.

E. ADAMS FIRST

E. Adams collected a .599 per cent total to set the pace in the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club's weekly match staged Saturday on the club range.

Mansfield Prepares for Ashland

Ashlanders Set To Upset Tyger Combine In Saturday's Game.

ASHLAND HIGH'S grid forces appear weak on paper, but Coach Paul Snyder isn't taking the team lightly as he prepares his Mansfield high charges for a tussle at Ashland Saturday afternoon

The Tyger combine will be gunning for its fifth win in seven starts and the Mansfield club is riding heavy favorites in spite of the Tygers' record

As lead has won two games and tied two in North Central Ohio conference games this fall It may be easy for the Tygers but Ashland usually is at its peak for the Mansfielders

With Dick Mattes regular right tackle out with a knee injury Harold Herman a senior, will start the post against the Ashland Tygers' initial appearance in the game

Mattes was the only member of the Mansfield squad to suffer a serious injury against the powerful Massillon juggernaut last week

The regular tackle injured his knee in the second game of the season but responded to treatment and he has played in every game so far

Coach Snyder announced today that a number of the squad is in excellent shape and heavy drills are scheduled until Friday. It will be the Tygers' initial appearance in the game

Ashland turned back Mt. Vernon in an NCO meeting last week, 14 to 12, and appears to have improved. The team's attack hadn't been able to function right until the club met the Yellow Jackets and Snyder believes the Ashlanders have hit their stride.

The Tyger outfit played one of its best games of the season against Massillon and Snyder fears the club will have a letdown He is working hard to keep the team on its toes.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

DETROIT—(UP)—With the opening of the next baseball season only a little more than five months away I'm sorry to be so late with this analysis of Detroit's chances of successfully defending its American league championship in 1941.

It's a simple analysis, too, because boiled down to its essential oils it is nothing more than this: The Tigers have just about as much chance of repeating as Hitler has of winning the Nobel peace prize. All they lack in the way of equipment is three-fourths of an infield, one-third of an outfield, and a pitching staff.

No team ever won an American league championship with as bad a second base combination as the Tigers did this year. All Bartell could do toward the close of the season was to holler, and Gehringer was too tired and too full of aches to do even that.

Nevertheless, the Tiger combination of 1941 figures to be even worse, what with Croucher replacing Bartell and Meyer taking over Gehringer's old stand.

Croucher has talent enough to be a whale of a shortstop but he is scared to death of a major league uniform. Throw him against minor leaguers in spring exhibitions and he is sensational. But he gets buck fever when working against major leaguers.

As for Meyer, he is a victim of the football he played in college. He is muscle bound about the shoulders and chest and can't throw.

The big Indian, York, is the only man really set in the Tiger infield. Higgins had a great year at third but he is getting no younger, as who is?

The Tiger outfield is fine as long as you don't look toward right field. Greenberg will be in left and the best young outfielder in baseball, McCoskey, in center. The Tigers used four right fielders this year—Averill, Campbell, Fox and Stainback. Next year they'll probably have to use five.

The catching will be all right. Better than all right, as a matter of fact, because in Sullivan and Tebbets the Tigers have the best pair of catchers in the league.

The pitching staff has lots of names but little stuff. Newsom, of course, is terrific. He'll probably be better next year than he was this season, now that he has finally learned to do more than just rear back and chunk the ball past the hitters.

Rowe's world series collapse indicated that he may be through for good. Trout's collapse indicated that he never did have much and that only the patience of Manager Baker has kept him around this long.

Bridges was a once-a-week worker this year and probably will need a fortnight of rest next summer. The pitching white hope is Giebell, the youngster who whipped Cleveland in the game that clinched the pennant for the Tigers.

No one around here feels that Hutchinson, for whom the Tigers gave $50,000 and five players, ever will be a ball of fire.

* * *

The only way the Tigers could repeat would be for the Yankees and the Indians to refuse to improve themselves over the winter.

BOWLING SCORES

INDIVIDUAL scoring honors went to Clarence "Sonny" Meder at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Bowling with the Page Dairy team in the Club league, the youthful kegler rattled the maples for a 660 total. He produced games of 222, 225 and 213 for his total, as his team dropped a pair of games to the Liederkranz club.

* * *

H. Hipp was high for a single game with a 244, while Pete Grohol of the American Legion club in the Club league had a 231. Hipp bowls with the No. 6 team in the Moose Lodge circuit.

NEBRASKA BACK TURNS TO PASSING TO STAR

LINCOLN, Neb.—(AP)—They're kicking out of bounds these days to keep Nebraska's quiet little Herman Rohrig from bettering his reputation for runbacks, so he's building a new one as one of the year's better football forward passers.

He's tossed a scoring pass against every team he's met this fall and has a better than .500 averge with eight completions in 15 throws. Only one of his passes has been intercepted. His touchdown victims were tough competitors Minnesota, Indiana and Missouri.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—(INS)—With two regulars on the sidelines with injuries, Army renewed scrimmages today for its big battle with Notre Dame in New York on Saturday.

Coach Bill Wood announced he did not believe Fullback Johnny Hatch, injured in the Cornell game, and Guard Ray Murphy, hurt in the Lafayette encounter, would be able to take part in the coming contest.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—(INS)—The University of Michigan's undefeated and high ranking football squad took things comparatively easy today before getting down to the serious business of practicing for the Nov. 9 Minnesota tilt. The Wolverines have an open date this Saturday.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—Northwestern's Wildcats, who risk their undefeated status against mighty Minnesota Saturday, were reported ready today to throw their most formidable lineup against the Gophers. Both Bill De Correvont and Ike Kepford, first string halfbacks who were on the injured list last week, are believed ready for duty.

MINNEAPOLIS —(INS)— Coach Bernie Bierman drove Minnesota's unbeaten Gophers through a hard workout today in preparation for the clash with Northwestern this week. The Gophers on Saturday will be seeking their first victory since 1929 over Northwestern on its home grounds.

NOTRE DAME—(INS)—The possibility that Capt. Milt Piepul, Notre Dame fullback, may not see action against Army in New York Saturday came as bad news today on the Irish practice field. Piepul suffered torn muscles against Illinois Saturday. Coach Elmer Layden admitted Piepul "might not be needed" against Army's apparently weak team, but said the big fullback would be a much disappointed youngster if he missed the game.

Football Notes

By LESLIE AVERY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Pigskin parade:

The foot bounced back into football in a large way over the weekend, deciding at least eight important games . . . St. Mary's beat Fordham, Syracuse nosed Columbia and Brown took Holy Cross by the margin of a field goal.

Dartmouth, Arkansas, Wisconsin, Washington, and Tulane scored one point victories with the kick after touchdowns . . . Manders and Artoe of the Chicago Bears sent three straight kickoffs squarely between the goal posts Sunday.

Eastern experts are criticizing Francis Schmidt for the complexity of Ohio State's offense . . . the Buckeyes appeared bewildered when they couldn't gain after that first period march against Cornell . . . spectators are still wondering what Schmidt expected to accomplish by sending two full teams on the field before the kickoff.

Twenty-two men went into a huddle, broke away just as if going to line up and run with the kick, then half of them stepped over the sideline just before the referee's whistle for the kickoff.

The 600 students accompanying Notre Dame to New York for the Army game Saturday must be coming for the ride.

However, Elmer Layden doesn't figure to allow his Irish horde to trounce the Cadets too severely . . . it would hurt next year's gate.

Before the Illinois game Saturday, Layden had used his first string for a total of only 69 minutes in four games, his second team 75 minutes, and the third, fourth, fifth and sixth the rest of the time.

Downtown Coaches Discuss Massillon Game At Meeting

A GENERAL discussion on last Friday night's Mansfield-Massillon football game, played at Stadium field, featured the regular meeting of the Mansfield Downtown Coaches association last night in the Senior high school gymnasium.

Coach Paul Snyder told members what the Tygers were up against when they play a team like Massillon, and also expressed his satisfaction as to the way members of his team played against a superior eleven such as Massillon was.

Various members asked questions on certain plays used by both teams during the contest.

J. G. Blahnik, association president, congratulated Snyder on the fine way his team played, and told the members that he didn't believe there was a person who saw the game who wasn't pleased with the way the Tygers performed.

Art Clarkson, who announced yesterday that he would show motion pictures of the Mansfield-Massillon game to the "coaches," failed to make an appearance at the school.

Oscar Vitt Extends Best Wishes To New Club Manager

OAKLAND, Cal.—(INS)—Best wishes and sympathy to his successor, whoever he may be, were extended by Oscar Vitt today as he reiterated he was not surprised that he was fired yesterday as manager of the Cleveland American League Baseball club.

* * *

Meanwhile, the now jobless ex-manager of the "cry baby" baseball club prepared to continue game hunting before seriously considering future employment. Vitt, now 50, feels he deserves a rest after 31 years of baseball. Reclining in his Oakland home, he said:

"I realized this was coming. At no time were next year's plans discussed with me and I knew long before the close of the season that unless drastic changes were made it would be impossible for me to work under the present circumstances.

"It doesn't look as though these changes are being made, so I am just as well satisfied. Whoever gets my job has my best wishes—also my sympathy."

Vitt concluded with: "Just tell the boys there that I don't intend to apply for unemployment compensation."

This was a parting shot at his former charges because Ken Keltner, Cleveland player, reportedly asked for unemployment compensation last winter.

Young Doug is presented as a Broadway "grafter," Miss Hayworth as a tired cafe entertainer and Qualen as a weak little man who embezzles his firm's money in order to keep his faithless wife in luxury, and Mitchell, as a playwright, who attempts to re-write the lives of the other three. The picture begins Wednesday at the Ohio for a three-day run.

One of the highlights of the movie season is "We Are Not Alone," the Paul Muni starring picture, adapted from the best-selling novel by James Hilton, author of "Goodbye Mr. Chips." Muni plays the part of a modern fictional character, a small town English doctor, who serves his patients with compassion and skill but is unable to remedy the pain in his own life. Co-feature at the Ritz, Wednesday and Thursday is "Alias the Deacon," with Bob Burns and an all-star cast.

City Fire Department In Need of More Men, Equipment, Chief Says

Only Two Men Available To Operate Blaze Fighting Apparatus Most of Which Is On Obsolete List

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of stories by city officials explaining the need for passage of the one-mill levy at the Nov. 5 election and how the levy will benefit their respective departments. Today's article deals with the functions of the Mansfield fire department.)

* * * * *

By FIRE CHIEF C. J. SEEBURGER

The fire department in 1911 had 20 men, eight at Central company and four each at stations, Nos. 2, 3 and 4. Equipment consisted of horse drawn apparatus, three units at No. 1, and one each at Nos. 2, 3 and 4.

Firemen at that time worked six days a week. Later the work week was reduced to five days and in 1920 the double platoon system of 24 hours on duty and 24 hours off was instituted and six additional firemen were placed in the department.

This made a total of 26 men split into two shifts of 13 each, among the four stations. In 1930 four more men were added boosting the department personnel to 30 firemen, making 15 men per shift.

With this setup the position of fire inspector was created and three firemen assigned to inspect all business properties for fire hazards and residences on request.

Between 1917 and 1930 the department was served by an assistant chief, the position finally being abolished. In 1939, a state law became operative restricting working hours for firemen to 72 hours a week. In order to comply with the law the city was required to give each fireman an additional day off per week which reduced the manpower by four men, leaving six men at station No. 1, to man three pieces of apparatus, and two men each at the other stations. This means that only two firemen are assigned to a piece of apparatus.

With this move we had no alternative but to abolish all inspection work, including inspection of hydrants. This leaves the department without men to thaw out frozen hydrants during the winter, thereby creating additional fire hazards to Mansfielders.

Mansfield's first two pieces of motor apparatus were purchased in 1916. Five more pieces were obtained in 1919, two of them to replace the original apparatus. Those last three named are still in service.

The other two were transferred to stations Nos. 3 and 4 and were replaced with new chassis in 1923. In 1929 a new pumper was added and it was not until 1938 that another piece of equipment was added. It is the only modern piece of apparatus now in use.

There you have a picture of your fire department which at the present is very badly undermanned and with but a single piece of dependable motor equipment.

The fire department of Mansfield has not kept pace with the growth of the city. With increasing territory to cover annually Mansfield should have a new fire station in the southwest part of the city to follow the population growth in that direction.

Even then apparatus stationed in that section of the city would have three times the area to cover as compared with the other stations.

The people of Mansfield are not getting the fire protection to which they are entitled and which they have a right to expect, because of the shortage of men and obsolete equipment.

The time has come when something must be done immediately to remedy the situation. A levy, of course, is much cheaper from a taxpayers standpoint than issuing bonds on which the cost of interest would be an additional burden.

By placing the fire department on a first class basis Mansfield can save the full amount of the levy in fire insurance savings.

Our water system is now in the process of being revamped and improved. When completed, it will provide for the city's needs for years to come but an adequate water supply means little to any city in the event of fire unless it has the proper manpower and equipment to fight fires.

Non-Partisan Judicial Ballot

GLENN W. MARRIOTT FOR PROBATE JUDGE

On account of the present demands of the Prosecutor's Office, I find that it will be impossible for me personally to see a number of my friends before election.

My experience as Prosecutor and the handling of a multitude of cases where juveniles were concerned would be an experience which would eminently qualify me for this important office.

My name will not appear on either of the party ballots but will be on the Non-Partisan Judicial Ballot.

Let me assure you of my sincere appreciation of your assistance in this coming election.

BUT LOOK, JUDGE — YOU KNOW HOW A FELLA WILL DO — —
I WAS STANDING AT THE MANTEL, TAKING UP THE LOOSE THREADS ON A $25,000 DEAL IN MY MIND — AND WITHOUT THINKING, I PUT MY THUMB IN THE VASE ! — — DON'T WORRY, IT'LL COME OFF WHEN THE THUMB SHRINKS !
UM — WHEN MRS PUFFLE LEARNS YOU HAVE HER PRIZE ANTIQUE, CHELSEA VASE STUCK ON YOUR THUMB, SHE'LL BARBECUE YOU ! — THE SEWING MACHINE OIL DON'T LOOSEN IT — SO, IN THE MEANTIME, TO KEEP IT FROM FALLING OFF AND BREAKING, I'LL BANDAGE IT TO YOUR WRIST — — AND YOU CAN SAY YOUR THUMB IS STOLEN FROM BOWLING !
THUMBS UP, POBIN !

LIFTING FORCE MEETS TROUBLE IN STOCK MART

Steels Move Up Moderately In Slow Trading; Commodities, Bonds Are Uneven.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Efforts to put a little lifting force under the stock market met with further opposition today although steels moved up moderately.

Some buying was attracted by U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, American Telephone and Bethlehem Steel.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Favorable market implications were seen in commercial reports indicating consumer purchasing power is now at a level which can support retail trade volumes comparable to those of 1929.

Confirmation was found in the department of commere adjusted index of income payments which rose to 91.5 of the 1929 average during September from 91.3 in August.

have been taken from the bowl, so that all of the men who registered on Oct. 16 will have an order number.

All arrangements for the historic drawing in Washington were completed hours in advance. Selected for the ceremony was the departmental auditorium, a marble, government-ownd hall on Washington's famous Constitution avenue. The hall stands in the shadow of the majestic monument to George Washington, founder of the nation.

Across the nearby Potomac river is Arlington cemetery and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier—silent monuments to the first huge American draft army of World war days.

Veterans of that war, 500 strong, turned out today to form an honor guard on the steps of the auditorium. It was their tribute to the new generation's response to the 1940 conscription act.

Flights of army planes also took part in the ceremony.

The 9,000 capsules containing 9,000 numbers to be drawn were kept under guard at a U. S. treasury vault until the last minute.

So was the goldfish bowl. The bowl was the same one used in the first and third lotteries in 1917 and 1918. It was brought here from Independence hall in Philadelphia, where it has been a museum piece.

Col. Charles Morris, of Elizabeth, N. J., a frail, grey-haired man, who supervised the World war lotteries, was on hand again. Now, past 65, Morris brought with him the blindfolds he used in '17 and '18. It was made from the covering of a chair used when the Declaration of Independence was signed in 1778.

The blindfold was a symbol. Actually it was not needed. The captsules containing the so-called order numbers are an opaque blue in color—non-transparent. No one could see through them. The blindfold only served to highlight justice in a democracy. It was a stage piece to show how impartially the lottery was being administered.

Following is the list of order numbers as drawn in Washington today, together with the names of the Richland county registrants holding these numbers. (Figures in parentheses following the names designate their draft districts, of which there are three in the county. Where fewer than three names are given, the reason is that one or more boards may not have serial numbers running that high):

(These were all the numbers drawn, as they applied to Richland county, up to edition time.)

How to Get Your Order Number

Here's how to figure out where you actually stand in the draft lottery. There are two things you must know. They are (1) your registration serial number and (2) the highest serial number issued by your draft board.

With this knowledge, check all the numbers drawn ahead of yours in the lottery. Scratch off each number that is higher than the highest number in your district. For instance, say the highest number issued in your district was 2,703, and your number was 450. If your number was the fifth drawn in the lottery, and the four drawn ahead of it were 384, 4987, 7032 and 12, scratch off 4987 and 7032. Your number, 450, then becomes Order No. 3 in your area. You will be the third man to be sent a questionnaire, and if all three are Class 1-A men, you will be the third man called to camp.

DEFENDS PARTY CONGRESS ACTS

Declares Republicans Made 7 Billion Dollar Arms Fund Possible.

home," Willkie said, "because of the Republican insistence that it stay in session in view of the grave international situation.

"Since that time, congress has made appropriations and contract authorizations of $12,140,000,000 for necessary but unfulfilled defense requirements. That is seven billion dollars more than was in the pending bills at the time he (Mr. Roosevelt) suggested they go home.

"If in June, congress had obeyed the president's behest to adjourn, the United States would still have seven billion dollars less defense on order than it now has.

"That demonstrates the unjustifiable nature of the third-term attempt.

"Important as is this small bit of the record, I refer here only to a detail of the ineffective leadership of the third-term candidate.

Willkie's statement was regarded by members of his campaign staff as only a preliminary discussion of the president's address which they said he probably would take up in detail today or tonight in one of his speeches.

The Republican nominee referred briefly to the defense situation last night in a speech at Louisville, Ky., in extemporaneous remarks after concluding his prepared text, he said:

"The third term candidate may now call attention to the fact that some Republicans spoke against the defense program. The Republican party was the party of opposition, the Democratic party was in control and if it had had a leader who knew how to lead it, America today would not be defenseless.

"Why talk of this man as the peerless leader of democracy who does not even know how to lead his own party.?"

Willkie, whose schedule today took him into southern Ohio and West Virginia, received an ovation at Louisville from a crowd which filled the armory. His voice was husky, but it did not break in his half hour address.

His speech was an appeal to the Democrats to oppose a third term for President Roosevelt on the ground that it would destroy the two-party system. He argued that a "New Deal party" had taken over the Democratic party.

"It is unlike the Democratic party," he said. "Its principles are as hostile to those of the Democratic party, and they are as fatal to it, as the fungus is to the oak.

"It is this New Deal party that now makes its ultimate grasp for power—the repeal of the rule against the third term—that its reign may continue in perpetuity."

Willkie contended that the idea of limiting presidential service to two terms has become common law.

Gov. John W. Bricker and a host of other party leaders.

A motor caravan was to escort him through Jackson's gaily bedecked streets to the Hill farm a mile southeast of town where at noon he delivers his final campaign speech in Ohio.

Charles Jones, chairman of the arrangements committee, estimated that 100,000 persons would hear the Republican nominee, pouring in from three southern Ohio congressional districts which include 23 counties.

After the address Willkie was to depart for Huntington and Charleston, W. Va. From the West Virginia capital he was to broadcast a major campaign speech at 10 30 p. m.

A holiday air pervaded Jackson. Banks were closed all day and from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. virtually all business places closed. The major problem was direction of traffic, but with dozens of highway patrolmen on duty and one-way traffic established on main thoroughfares Chairman Jones believed the situation would be handled with a minimum of difficulty.

NEW YORK—(AP)— Beauticians look for a boom in the cosmetics and hair-do business as a result of the draft.

With 800,000 men soon to be in the army, "the competition for men will be something fierce," Miss Gail Aronton told the New York state Hairdressers' and Cosmetologists' association.

along miles of the frontier.

The direction of the Italian attack was taken to indicate that Salonika, on the Aegean sea, is the first main objective of the Fascist legions. That would cut off Macedonia and Thrace and sever the Greek defenders from friendly Turkey by land.

Although there was no sign what course Turkey might take, cheering crowds carried Turkish banners along with their own and British flags, and hoped for help.

Premier Metaxas talked by telephone with President Inonu of Turkey yesterday, soon after the first firing along the northwest frontier.

(A British broadcast reported anti-Italian demonstrations in Yugoslavia, and alleged Albanians were revolting in such numbers that Italy would need 50,000 troops to keep her control there.)

Italy Advances At Snail Pace

BELGRADE JUGOSLAVIA —(UP)—Italy's snail-pace advance into Greece was described by authoritative sources today as merely the first move in a big-scale Axis offensive against Great Britain.

Although Great Britain has begun operations in defense of Greece, it was reported that the Fascist forces had made only the slightest gains in the first 24 hours of operations and had suffered severe losses in comparison to the number of men engaged in some clashes near the Albanian border.

The chief objective of British naval and air aid to Greece, it was understood, would be protection of the port of Salonia since its seizure by the Axis powers would "lock the door" of the Balkans against Britain.

At the same time, it was pointed out here, Britain would be much closer to the Rumanian oil fiends (now dominated by Germany) if British bases were established in Greece.

British bombers at present cannot easily reach the Rumanian oil fields from British bases, but it would be a comparatively short bombing raid from Greece.

Furthermore, there were persistent reports that an Albanian revolt—as well as Greek defense lines in the mountains—was holding up the Fascist advance. Neutral sources here said it was difficult to say how much credence should be given the rebellion reports, but one message from Ohrid said that the movement had been carefully organized and was spreading rapidly.

Bombs exploded at Valona and Sante Quaranti, killing several persons these reports said. Other unofficial messages reported that Albanian sharpshooters were operating in the mountain wilderness against the Fascists.

As a result of these circumstances, it was said, Italy and Germany desire at present to keep the Greek expedition on a comparatively small scale in the hopes of preventing a sudden spread of war in the Balkans that would interfere with their long-range plan for a general offensive against the British empire in the Mediterranean.

Jugoslav official sources seemed momentarily reassured by the slow pace of the Greek-Italian military operations and the first tension here was relaxed.

Military experts here took the view that Italy was in grave danger of weakening her position in the Mediterranean by the invasion of Greece. They pointed out that British forces already going to the aid of Greece presumably could seize such important points as the Greek Island of Lomnos, which would make a good bombing base for attack on the Italian mainland only 300 miles away. Such a base would be much closer to vital Fascist targets than any from which British bombers have previously operated.

Anti-Italian Demonstrations

NEW YORK—(UP)—A British radio broadcast picked up by Columbia Broadcasting system in New York today said that "anti-Italian demonstrations are reported in Jugoslavia."

The broadcast added that the reported revolt in Albania is "taking on longer and more serious proportions" and claimed the Italians "need about 50,000 troops to keep the Albanians down."

A few minutes later another British broadcast said all Yugoslavian army leaves have been cancelled as a "precautionary measure."

proclaim Greece at war, bring her under the cash and carry arms sales system, and "freeze" here credits in the United States.

And, shortly before the drawing of the first number to determine the order in which men shall be mustered for selective service, Mr. Roosevelt was to explain to the nation by radio just what that step involved.

For its record on defense legislation, including an amendment to the draft act, President Roosevelt "indicted" the Republican leadership in a speech at New York's Madison Square Garden last night.

Senate Republicans, he said, had voted 8 to 6 against an amendment to prevent profiteering or unpatriotic obstruction by any corporation in defense work."

Their votes said in effect, he declared, that "they put money rights ahead of human lives."

Outside the halls of congress at the time, he added, eminent Republican candidates had begun to turn new somersaults.

"At first they denounced the bill," the president asserted. "Then when public opinion rose up to demand it, they seized their trapeze with the greatest of ease, and reversed themselves in mid-air."

The big sports arena which seats about 21,000, was packed to the rafters. Eighty times the crowd broke into the presidential address with laughter, applause, or boos and hisses for Republicans.

The speech topped a 70-mile motor tour through northern New Jersey and New York City's five boroughs. Lewis Valentine, New York public commissioner, estimated 2,000,000 persons turned out to see the chief executive on the trip through New York alone.

In the garden, after a brief expression of sorrow that another war had begun abroad, Mr. Roosevelt undertook to answer "major campaign falsifications with facts."

"I now brand as false," he said, "the statement being made by Republican campaign orators, day after day and night after night, that the rearming of America is slow, that it is hamstrung and impeded, that it will never be able to meet threats from abroad."

In their statements and in their votes in congress, he said, Republican leaders had written a record of "sabotage of this administration's continual efforts to increase our defenses."

He said they had accused him of being an "alarmist" when he proposed bigger defense appropriations. But, he interpolated, "I've learned by now to take it on the chin."

Asking the American people to support a continuance of an "affirmative, realistic fight for peace," he said the alternative was "to risk the future of the country in the hands of those with this record of timidity, weakness and short-sightedness or in the inexperienced hands of those who in these perilous days, are willing recklessly to imply that our boys are already on their way to the transports."

He did not speak Wendell L. Willkie's name.

SECRETARY EARLY GIVES KNEE TO COLORED COP IN NEW YORK

WASHINGTON —(NS)— Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early today denied that during an altercation between groups of President Roosevelt's officials and city police in Pennsylvania railroad station in New York last night he had given the knee to a colored patrolman.

The police group said Early had also struck two other policemen, occurred when a squad of police blocked the path of Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, Mrs. Morgenthau, some of the press and news photographers as they headed for the presidential train following Mr. Roosevelt's Madison Square Garden speech.

Early was asked at his press conference today if he had "kicked" the colored policeman.

"I didn't kick him, I just gave him the knee," Early answered.

"And it wasn't one policeman—it was a squad of police. The sergeant wouldn't let us through although we showed him our credentials.

"He shoved me and I shoved back. I shoved one with my right hand and another with my left. But I've only got two hands. When this colored patrolman came at me I gave him the knee.

"We finally found a police captain and got on the train all right.

Members of the party said the colored patrolman claimed he was injured. They said he held his stomach and cried repeatedly:

"He hurt in the stomach. I've just had an operation. He kicked me."

Willkie Speaks In Ohio Today

JACKSON, O. —(NS)— All roads leading into this southern Ohio county seat and traditional Republican stronghold were crowded today with countless thousands bent upon hearing Wendell Willkie make his last bid in Ohio for the state's 26 electoral votes.

Willkie, the GOP presidential nominee, was to arrive from Louisville, Ky., aboard his special train at 11 a. m., to be met by Gov. John W. Bricker and a host of other party leaders.

A motor caravan was to escort him through Jackson's gaily bedecked streets to the Hill farm a mile southeast of town where at noon he delivers his final campaign speech in Ohio.

Charles Jones, chairman of the arrangements committee, estimated that 100,000 persons would hear the Republican nominee, pouring in from three southern Ohio congressional districts which include 23 counties.

After the address Willkie was to depart for Huntington and Charleston, W. Va. From the West Virginia capital he was to broadcast a major campaign speech at 10 30 p. m.

A holiday air pervaded Jackson. Banks were closed all day and from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. virtually all business places closed. The major problem was direction of traffic, but with dozens of highway patrolmen on duty and one-way traffic established on main thoroughfares Chairman Jones believed the situation would be handled with a minimum of difficulty.

Mother In Audience as President Calls Son's Number

SCREAMS IN SURPRISE AT FIRST NUMBER

Parent Short Time Earlier Had Said She Hoped Boy Would Get 'Early Call.'

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The mother of a 21-year-old boy whose number was first drawn in America's first peace time draft lottery was in the auditorium audience today when her son's number was called.

She was Mrs. Mildred C. Bell, and she let out an audible scream as President Roosevelt personally announced that the first number called was 158.

Mrs. Bell earlier had told International News Service she hoped that her 21-year-old youngster, Robert, would be called early, but she was stunned with surprise when the wish was granted.

Mrs. Bell was breathless with surprise and asked reporters to find her husband, Harry S. Bell, who served in the medical corps during the last war and was in the honor guard at today's draft lottery.

A black-haired attractive woman who took the situation easily after the first surprise wore off. Mrs. Bell was one of a dozen wives of American Legion members, who gathered early in the morning to be on hand for today's draft. It was in this role of wives of 1917 soldiers that a domestic click of knitting needles organized in the auditorium to beat a constant rhythm to the bustle of America's 1940 draft.

They sat silent under the Kleig lights in the auditorium until Mrs. Bell's scream pierced the air.

"I hope they call my boy first," Mrs. Bell had said earlier.

Her eyes had been glued on the goldfish bowl mounted on the stage, but her fingers never stopped, as they fashioned a small pink sweater from the big ball of yarn in her lap.

ROTARY SPEAKER

Marysville Retormatory Head Tells of Institution.

Rehabilitation and salvage are the real purposes of the Ohio reformatory for women, at Marysville, according to Marguerite Reilley, superintendent, who was the speaker at Tuesday's meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Mrs. Reilley, whose practice of law was interspersed with institutional and correctional work in Cleveland and Chicago, told of peculiar quirks of character which lead women to commit crimes, in which a high percentage involve violence against persons.

Much of her talk was devoted to the case histories of young and older women committted to Marysville, and of the undesirable notoriety attained in some instances of especially atrocious crimes. None of the characters mentioned were identified by other than first names.

Ralph E. Moorhead was program chairman for the meeting. Herbert R. Slough, chairman of the citizens committee for the one-mill levy, briefly explained the purposes for which the levy is intended.

STARTS CHECK

State Launches 'Clean Up' of Barber Practices.

Bootleg barbers whose tonsorial efforts are contrary to state health laws today had brought a representative of the state board of barbers to Mansfield to "clean up" here.

The first barber caught in the net was John Scoff, who was arrested today for operating without a shop and going from house to house. He was specifically charged with barbering without a license.

The affidavit against him was signed by Carl Hartman, Columbus, investigator for the state board of barbers. Scoff pleaded innocent but was found guilty and fined $75 and costs, both of which were suspended on condition that he either stop barbering or obtain a license and conform to state requirements.

Hartman said that the board did not want to be "tough" on men who were trying to make a living but that the state laws were set up to protect the public from unsanitary operations.

BATTERY D MEMBERS CAMPED IN MISSISSIPPI PINE FOREST

In the middle of a big pine forest in Mississippi, the men and officers of Battery D, 134th F. A.—"Mansfield's Own" — are going about the business of establishing camp homes, according to Sgt. Dale Rowan.

Rowan writes that it is a beautiful location for an army camp and that Battery D is located high on a knoll, surrounded by pine trees.

The entire camp is six miles in length and four miles wide and there are still trees standing in the camp streets. Rowan says that the location was formerly the Mississippi camp for its National Guard, but that it is now a regular army camp.

Each unit has a "very fine wood mess hall wth most of the facilities dear to the heart of the army cook." The Battery has a total of 12 squad tents with wooden floors, electric lights, and each man has a new canvass cot with matress. Next week they will be issued sheets for their beds, and hot and cold wated will be installed for showers.

A total of approximately 10,000 men a day, in three shifts, are gradually turning the forest camp into a soldiers' home. The men work 44½ hours a week, with Saturday afternoon and Sunday off unless on special detail. They must go to bed at 10 p. m. and reveille is sounded at 5:30 a. m. every morning. The men are restricted to the camp area.

Company classes opened last night. There will be 13 weeks of study on military subjects.

Rowan says the men "appear to be happy despite the 5:30 a. m. bugle."

Among the 30 instructors who have been appointed for training of the 38th division by Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, is Second Lieut. Carl Coleman of Ashland, it was announced today. They began preparing others today to supervise the training of troops.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1940.

"Watchful waiting" is much less nerve-wracking when there's a strong army and navy to help watch.

Whatever benefits may accrue from learning how to be "a good loser" are being enjoyed by Ohio State this season.

Trial of a Chicago egg-thrower was postponed to allow him to get witnesses "to prove he was intoxicated"—which seems quite unfair to poor old John Barleycorn.

It is YOUR Vote That Counts!

ONE WEEK FROM TODAY more millions of American men and women will be voting than have ever voted in a past presidential election.

Based on increased registrations in cities, and appearance of widespread interest throughout the country, it is believed that a total approaching fifty million votes will be cast next Tuesday, as compared with the previous high of 45,647,117 four years ago.

Many factors contribute to make this the greatest political battle of the present generation, chief among these being the uncertainty created by the almost total disregard for party lines shown by voters in all states except those of the Solid South.

In addition to going into the final week of the campaign as a "doubtful" state in the presidential race, Ohio has enough state, district and county contests to enliven interest and assure a large turnout of voters in villages, small cities and rural districts, as well as in the large cities.

While it might appear that, in a total of millions, one vote is unimportant, the fact is that the RIGHT to vote is one of the most precious privileges of free people and that failure or neglect to vote, in accord with the dictates of judgment and conscience, is a direct blow at the principles upon which this government is founded—self government conforming to majority wishes expressed through ballots cast on election day.

Every evening this week Mansfield and Richland county voters will have opportunity to become better informed on issues of the campaign—national, state and local—and, in addition, newspaper readers and radio listeners will be privileged to read and hear claims made by spokesmen for both sides of the case.

An "open mind," maintained through the week, should prove beneficial in preparing to render a fair verdict next Tuesday.

To Rededicate Memorial Trees

TWENTY YEARS AGO people in Europe and the United States were setting up all kinds of war memorials. In a number of places over here they took the form of highway beautification. Trees were planted and dedicated to individual soldiers—by name. Gardens were made for the same purpose.

Today Europe's war memorials are being shattered by the destructive forces of another and more devastating war. And here at home many of the trees, formerly nurtured lovingly, have been neglected.

One state, in which 8,000 trees were set out for war memorials and later forgotten, intends to do something about them now. A part of its Armistice day observance will be a program rededicating those trees. The state department of highways will then be given full responsibility for their continuing care.

The preliminary work has already begun. It includes locating the trees and the names they once honored. Doubtless many replacements will be necessary. The project is worth reviving for the sake of the trees as much as for its memorial aspect. There is no better expression of patriotism than the effort to make a beloved country more beautiful.

Good and Bad Uses for Metal

A BIG National Metal Congress and Exposition impresses Americans with the dominant part that metals play in our industrial civilization. Especially the basic metals iron and copper and the alloys that metallurgists have learned to make.

"To emphasize to yourself the contribution that metals have made to your ordinary comforts," observes a business writer, "imagine what your life would be if you eliminated all the metals in your direct, daily use today. You would be without automobile, refrigerator, telephone, electric light, plumbing, furnace, stove and cooking utensils. You would even be without knife, fork and spoon and needles and pins. You would be back to a mantle of skin, held in place by a twig."

On the other hand, you wouldn't be involved in the deadly wars that ravage the earth in this metallic age. The most important use for basic metals today seems to be for killing people, and the main part of our industries is making metallic weapons and munitions for that purpose.

Faster Welding for Warships

AMERICAN armament may move along faster than has been expected, because of technical improvements, says Robert E. Kinkead, consulting engineer. He recently won a $9,000 prize for an invention producing armor plate almost as fast as ordinary steel. The new expectations come from notable improvements in steel welding.

"The welding industry is full of all kinds of developments which will flower under the pressure of our defense program," declares Mr. Kinkead. Hitler's engineers and welders thought they were doing a notable job when, by electric arc welding, they were able to weld armor plate to the hulls of war vessels at the rate of one foot per hour. American research has developed so much farther in the art of "tying together the inch-thick slabs of steel that cover naval fighting craft" that two good mechanics with the proper training can now do this at the rate of 90 feet per hour.

"There is a lot of latent progress that will be set off when we really buckle down next month," says Mr. Kinkead. "If they want speed we can give it to them."

He says that virtual government subsidies, by letting companies amortize their plants in a short time, are "making it attractive for industry to write off obsolescent machinery" and start with far better equipment. Thus he thinks it may be possible to build our new battle fleet in half the time it used to take.

Word comes from Hollywood that "curves are returning to girls in the films"—so that, after all, Mae West may scarcely be missed.

There will continue to be wars until more people realize that might doesn't make right.

VEGETABLES TO SPARE

Historic Lineup Amazingly Upset

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — This year witnesses an amazing upset in the historical lineup of our country so far as economic ideas affecting presidential campaigns is concerned. For years and years, politically, the wild and woolly theories came from the west. The Northeast was conservative and bitterly opposed to unorthodox economics.

William Jennings Bryan used to call New York the "Enemy's Country." It's rather curious, for he meant New York City, and then, as now, New York City was generally very heavily Democratic.

The Northeastern states, in those days, could be depended upon to throw the Wild Western ideas for a loop, every time a "Sockless Jerry" Simpson or any long-haired reformer came from Kansas or Iowa to reform the nation. Bryan always made a poor showing in New York, and all the other Northeastern states, when he ran.

A little later it was "Fighting Bob" LaFollette, of Wisconsin, father of the present senator, who sprang most of the economic proposals that were supposed to send chills up and down the spines of reactionary New York and the "east."

In fact, so strong did this sectional hate between the East and the West become, just a lit le while back, that it almost dwarfed the traditional feeling between the North and the South.

BUT what a change has come over the country in THIS campaign!

This time it is the formerly conservative Northeast which looks strong for the more radical of the two presidential candidates. Massachusetts and Connecticut are two of the weakest spots in the lineup of the electoral college from the Willkie standpoint, if one can believe all the polls.

New York, which most political observers concede is the pivotal state this year, is so close, according to the poll being made by the "New York Daily News" a strongly pro-Roosevelt newspaper, that it's anybody's bet. Four years ago incidentally this "News" poll was very accurate in forecasting the tremendous Roosevelt majority of the Empire state.

BUT out in the old stamping ground of the radicals and progressives it is another story. One of the states most surely for Willkie is Wisconsin, and incidentally reports from the dairyland state are that young Bob La Follette is even weaker than the third-term ticket.

Iowa, where a long line of Progressives made history and forced changes at Washington in railroad regulation a few years back, the state which sent Smith Wildman Brookhart to the senate is reported sure for Willkie. So is Nebraska, the home of Senator George W. Norris, who began bolting the Republican party when Alfred E. Smith ran for president in 1928, and has not supported a Republican since.

Kansas, the home of "Sockless Jerry" and a hundred other economic quacks, is beyond doubt in the Willkie column, even according to the Gallup poll.

It certainly would surprise some of the old fellows to come back and take a look!

Listen World!

That Burma Road

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THREE FORTY-FIVE A. M. Sitting here since seven, typing, listening, waiting. Waiting for the news to break.

The night's bat black outside. Tight black. Taut as a violin string. Any second, you feel, it may snap and let all hell come busting in.

For they were opening the Burma Road.

Queer affair, that Burma Road. Way off there, across the Pacific, on the other side of the somersault. Not much of a highway, according to our American standards. Part trail . . . part hog-wallow.

Scrooging along the side of a mountain . . . sliming through jungle steam and ooze . . . crawling across a sun-seared waste. You and I wouldn't want any part of it. Yet all the world listened and held its breath as the bonds which closed it came down.

Insignificant as it may seem to us, that Burma Road is the life line of modern Asia and will leave its mark forever on human history. For, at its end, lies the camp of China's General Chiang Kai-shek, and only along the ruts and wallows of the Burma Road can come the food and munitions which Chiang Kai-shek so desperately needs if he and his men are not to die.

Three months ago the British closed that road, hoping to appease Japan—hoping to abate, by even a margin, the tide of horror and hate which is sweeping across the world. Since then, Japan has entered the Axis and England will no longer aid her. So the barriers come down. And while you and I watch through the hours, the tremendous drama stirs.

For days they've been waiting, hidden in the swamps and underbrush, that vast fleet of trucks loaded with help for Kai-shek. Hundreds — thousands of trucks, they say — driven by Chinese. Loaded with life. Racing against death. And for days they've been gathering along the horizon, that fierce flock of man-made vultures the war planes of Japan. A breath-taking terror — the thought of those muffled motors, those hoving wings. Whatever your opinion or prejudice, you cannot but admire the courage which spurs those drivers on. They knew not what would happen when those barriers came down. But this is sure—

Any fate is better than slow despair and decay at the end of a closed road.

And I'm not thinking now of the Burma Road. I'm thinking of the closed roads which bar so many of our lives . . . of the barriers of fear and ignorance, stupidity and indifference which shut us off from the risk and the rush of freedom. It isn't only Chiang Kai-shek who waits starving, weakening, in a cul-de-sac.

Sooner or later we all find ourselves waiting at the end of some Burma Road . . . shut away from the great adventures by bonds of grief or anger, pride or fear, laziness, stubbornness or stupidity. Shut away from life by bonds of our own making.

THEN COME OUT OF THAT CUL-DE-SAC!

BREAK THOSE BARRIERS!

OPEN THAT BURMA ROAD!

Life is calling you, as never it called before. Life is waiting, ready to make its dash to you . . . Loaded with the makings of a braver, better stand! Give it a chance!

Risks? Of course there are. Endless risks. Challenges . . . criticisms, conflicts . . . campaigns. All the tests which changing life thrusts on a growing spirit. Life is never safe nor soft along any Burma Road. Vultures hover ahead . . . progress roars below. You must move with the progress . . . or feed the vultures . . . there's no alternative.

Then stop your shirking. Stop your shrinking! Open that long closed road! If you stay as you are, you'll rot. So make a dash for freedom. Clear the way for wisdom! Slash your way to an open mind!

OPEN THAT BURMA ROAD!

Depend on Kelly-Nash Machine To Pile Up Big Chicago Plurality

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

CHICAGO — In a gorgeous-hued Hollywood suit, behind about seven doors and seven secretaries in Democratic headquarters, sits the Honorable Scott Lucas, generalissimo of the Roosevelt forces for the Midwest.

Senator Lucas, ordinarily genial and kindly, is not a happy man. His brow is creased with furrows as he frets over the lack of support he is getting from Democratic headquarters in New York.

"We can't conduct a campaign without cash," says the senator, and no cash has been forthcoming from New York. Of course, the senator fails to add that other campaign headquarters have gone out and raised their own cash without waiting for New York. But apparently that has not occurred to him; and the status of the Roosevelt campaign in the Midwest generally reflects his inertia.

At present, Republican campaign managers confidently predict a minimum 200,000 majority in downstate Illinois—and Democratic leaders, when they take their hair down, agree with them. All of which means that Cook county (Chicago) will tell the story of Illinois on Nov. 5. In order to carry the state, Roosevelt must pile up a lead of 300,000 in the densely populated domain of Messrs. Ed Kelly and Pat Nash.

Whether Roosevelt can top Willkie's downstate majority is most uncertain. A month ago it looked like a cinch. But it is a different story today. That is why Roosevelt campaign managers heve been pleading with him to make a trip to Chicago. A personal appearance, they believe, would turn the tide in his favor.

Without that trip, Illinois is anybody's state. It can go either to Roosevelt or to Willkie.

Fighting Business Men.

MOST interesting phase of the crucial Chicago battle is the militant role prominent business men are playing in the Willkie campaign.

When Ernest T. Weir, Pittsburgh steel magnate and chairman of the GOP finance committee, complained recently that business men were not making good on their pre-convention campaign fund promises, he wasn't talking about Chicago.

Out here they not only are digging deep into their jeans, but are prodding the lagging zeal of certain Republican politicians. This significant movement arose spontaneously earlier in the autumn when the trend appeared to be away from Willkie.

GOP leaders went around with long faces and talked lugubriously. So at this point a small group of top business men got together and decided to do something. They were:

Willkie's Blessing.

THE plan agreed on was to hold a series of business men's luncheon rallies to stoke up campaign contributions and also inspire men to get out and work for Willkie.

MacFarland, Anderson and Wampler flew East and laid the idea before Willkie himself at a midnight meeting in his private car after his Philadelphia speech. His response was a hearty, "Go to it, and God bless you."

The group went to it—and have been going to it ever since. At the first luncheon, 700 attended and in response to MacFarland's terse demand, "How much is it worth to you to get rid of Roosevelt?" they contributed $36,000.

At a second luncheon a week later, 1,100 were present and the baskets, circulated by debutantes, netted $48,000. Five contributions were for $1,000 each and Sewell Avery was so enthused that he grabbed the check for the entire luncheon—which was $1,600 without tips.

Cheered by this exuberant beginning, the business leaders decided to carry it to other important Midwestern centers. MacFarland dashed out to Omaha, and in two days promoted a luncheon that netted $10,000 and started an organization similar to that in Chicago.

Wampler, Anderson and others are now doing missionary work in Kansas City, St. Louis, Detroit, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Toledo and Cleveland. Their plan is to blanket the Midwest with these business units and if time permits extend them to the Altantic seaboard.

Concentrating on Kelly.

IN CHICAGO a considerable portion of the money raised will be allotted to the Citizens Information Committee, a business men's organization, now centering its campaign on the 16 city wards which last year gave Mayor Ed Kelly his huge winning majority.

The program of the CIC is: "Put a stop to business baiting; eliminate class hatred; substitute jobs for WPA; get back to a sound fiscal policy; keep the third term tradition unbroken; have every effort exerted to keep out of war; have an organizer and administrator at the helm in case of war."

Henry Pope, jr., president of the Bear Brand Hosiery Co., heads the CIC, which in Chicago is generally known as the "Pope Committee."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Today is the 54th birthday of a very great lady and it is a pity you can't be here to go and see her. She came to this country from France, but don't let that fool you; she is as solidly American as an ear of Iowa corn.

She lives on a tiny island in New York harbor. Most of the great people of the world have paid homage to her. Children from across the seas have wept in her presence. Poets have sung her praises, and on many occasions men have died fighting for the ideal she represents. Most of us think of her simply as the Statute of Liberty.

A sure way to pick up a few laughs is to sit in the control room with Ben Bernie during a rehearsal for one of his Tuesday night broadcasts. Ben likes to issure instructions to his lads in terms of rival band leaders. For instance he will yell through the playback system: "Give it more of the Kostelanetz stuff." . . . A few moments later he may cry, "Never mind the Sammy Kaye." . . . Then he's apt to say, "All right now, just a little more of that Lombardo whistle." . . . Once, toward the end of a song, he yelled, "Just a little more schmaltz, boys, and it'll sound like Ben Bernie. That's what I want."

REMEMBER old Cannonball Baker, who pilots fast automobiles? Old Cannon weighs 225 lbs. now and has driven the coast-to-coast run 119 times. He's around town, talking "cars."

At the Automobile Show he told me he remembered and could name 800 American-made cars that have passed into oblivion since the first such exhibition was held at the old Madison Square Garden in 1900. The big problem that year was proving to the public the darned things would run. "I remember," said Cannon, "seeing old Joe McDuffy driving up a plank incline, just to prove it would go uphill." At that first show we had Haynes, Duryea, Crawford-Comets, Gildes, and Cannons. Remember those cars? Dead now, all gone and forgotten.

"The first electric horns and rumble seats came in 1906. Insomnia was on the increase and lovers' lanes began to smell of carbon monoxide. The first taxi came in 1907, and what a jeer went up from the hack-drivers in front of Rectors. In 1908 we all thought the motor age had reached its zenith. . . . In 1911 we had the first self-starter. I made my first transcontinental run in a 1915 Stutz-Bearcat. It had four-wheel breaks. In 1925 we had our first balloon tires."

Cannon is a walking encyclopedia of motor history. "The middle twenties," he reflected, "saw the passing of many a brave buggy—Maxwell, Columbia, American, Gardner, Saxon."

Health and Diet

All Gain, But Women Live Longer.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

STATISTICS are notorious for several things and few people have a good word for them. During the last summer we have seen an example of mass hysteria and hatred of statistics in the opposition to answering the census questions.

And yet the figures in the census are of fundamental usefulness in every field of government, including public health. If you read the famous third chapter of Macaulay's History of England you will find that nobody knew even how many people lived in England in 1685. How then could they know what diseases were prevalent, the proportion of deaths to births, the common causes of death—much less how to combat them? Vital statistics are really very vital.

The study of longevity reveals some queer facts. Women in the United States live on an average about four years longer than men. The average longevity of the men is now about 61 years, of women about 65.

When you are born in the United States your expectation of life is 60.8 years. If you manage to live one year of age, this rises to 63 years. The first year of life is the most dangerous—except as some wit corrected it, the last year. But at the end of one year, you have the longest prospect of years of life. When you reach 16, you have only 50 years to look forward to, when you are 45 only a bare quarter-century.

Several Years Gained.

We have gained several years since the dawn of the century. In 1901, an American woman had an average length of life of 51 years (compared to the present 65) and the American male an average of about 49 years (compared to his present 61.)

Seasonal variations in the death rate are interesting. The largest number of deaths at all ages occurs in February, the lowest in September. This is easy to understand because the death rate from pneumonia, respiratory infections and exposure comes in December, January, February and March. Old people die in the winter, babies in the summer. In other days, the death rate in July and August would have been nearly as high as in February—from infantile dysentery—but clean milks and other things have reduced that. But in nine states of the Union, intestinal infection in infants still rank among the ten chief causes of death.

Regional Variations.

Regional variations are also interesting and not so easily explained. The highest rate for pneumonia does not occur in the cold and changeable climate of the North, but in southern and mountain country — Colorado, Utah, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky. Deaths due to accident do not occur as frequently in industrial areas as in the Rocky Mountain region—the automobile speeding in the wide open spaces is the factor.

Diabetes occurs among the ten leading causes of death only in the prosperous states of the North and the Pacific Coast. In Nevada, Washington and California suicide ranks among the nine commonest causes of death; in Connecticut and Colorado, among the ten. This is ahead of all other states, for some reason unknown to statisticians.

Tuberculosis is high among the causes of death in Arizona and New Mexico for obvious reasons (the number of patients attracted there.) But why appendicitis should be higher in Idaho, Nevada and Wyoming than elsewhere is a mystery.

CHAPTER XXIV.

After that he was again often absent, but only for a night, or for a few days now and then, and when Easter holidays came he announced that he was going to take Norma and Jocelyn to Honolulu. They would be gone only 15 days, eight of which would be spent at sea; they would have just a week in the islands.

This prospect seemed to excite Norma more than any other her life had offered her. It touched Jocelyn to realize that to be with "Daddy" and with her adored Jotsy on this trip would give it an element of freedom and pleasure that Norma's outings never had known before. The prospect of no lessons, no Sandy, no Granny, just sheer fun with the two persons she liked best in the world raised Norma's spirits to their wildest pitch. Jocelyn was not far behind her; she was experiencing in these days the deepest joy a woman's heart can know; she loved and she knew now that she never had loved before.

Just how she had come to care for Philip she could not quite have said. There was no necessity to say it, even to herself. She was too sure for that. Sure, without a word from him, without a kiss, without a touch of his hand. A thousand insufficient trifles became all important when her memory joined them; his expression of amusement and affection when they talked of Norma; his consideration for her; his concern that she be made comfortable; the moments he spent occasionally with her and Norma, teasing them, questioning them, at ease as she never saw him at ease under any other circumstances, these and many other little circumstances like them confirmed in her the feeling that burned in her veins almost like a fever, that possessed her with hope and fear, self-contempt and a wild pride, day and night.

There had been almost from the moment of his return from the Washington trip a feeling that she knew at last for love. Everything he did and said thrilled her to the very depths of her being, at night when she was lying wakeful and happy and unhappy in the spring moonlight she remembered the glance he had given her from the bridge table when she and Norma went through the hall, the meaning that he somehow put into his most careless morning greetings, his briefest messages to her.

Spring was in full flood over the orchards and gardens, the blue mountains and the high meadows now. To Jocelyn there never had been such a spring, and as she heard Philip's quick step on the stairs, the gayer notes of his voice, his readier laughter she told herself that it was spring for him, too.

If she had needed any confirmation of her dream, she would have had it in a rude awakening when one Friday evening Mrs. Kimberley came out from a bridge game to watch the games and to ask Miss Britton for a word aside. The younger crowd was busy over a frenzied struggle with the Prince of Paris and his lost cap, and Jocelyn could go with the other woman into the adjoining room and face her with merely curious eyes. But the moment she saw her guest's expression her own changed and her heart sank.

"Miss Britton, I've promised dear Mrs. Fordyce to speak to you, and I know you'll understand," Jane Kimberly began in a bright, nervous, yet determined tone.

"What is it?" Jocelyn asked.

"It's—Miss Britton, you know we are all very fond of you here, and that you and Sandy have done wonders for Norma. But you're not going to Honolulu on the fifteenth with Norma and Phil—Mr. Fordyce?"

* * *

"Because—my de-ar-r-r-'" Mrs. Kimberley protested, with an eloquent spreading of hands. "A girl like you," she elucidated it, "can't possibly go on a trip with a—a stunning man like Phil, without a great deal of criticism. Without a great deal of criticism! You must see that?"

"I'm Norma's governess," Jocelyn offered, selecting words somehow from a wild confusion of heart and mind. "It seems to me that to go on a two-week's vacation with her and her father is a perfectly natural thing to do."

"It's an impossible thing to do," Mrs. Kimberley said. "Miss Sanderson is Norma's governess."

"Only in name. Sandy does nothing for her now, except now and then talk to her teachers about her school work, perhaps."

Excuse me." Mrs. Kimberley said icily. "Mrs. Fordyce calls you her 'companion'."

"You're in love with Phil Fordyce, that's what the trouble," Jocelyn thought. Aloud she said: "Mrs. Fordyce knows of this trip She and Norma and I were buying clothes for it yesterday."

"And if the Countess von Sturnberg hears that Norma has gone to Hawaii with her father and a very pretty girl?" Mrs. Kimberley said, almost archly. Jocelyn had a strong impulse of hate; she felt the hot blood in her face again.

"It would be too bad to disappoint Norma now," she said. "She has set her heart upon going."

"It wouldn't necessarily mean that," Mrs. Kimberley said delicately. "I told Philip—Mr. Fordyce last night that if I could possibly arrange it, Jean and I would go. That would regularize the whole arrangement. In that case Sandy says she would go—it's just as well to have an older person around."

"I can consult Mr. Fordyce about it," Jocelyn said, her heart sick with anger and disappointment. Norma had been happier, more like a normal girl, over this prospect than Jocelyn had ever seen her before. They had discussed every detail of the trip with the eagerness of complete novelty and pleasure on Jocelyn's part, and a real girlish unspoiled enthusiasm on Norma's that had delighted Jocelyn. They had selected bathing suits, sport clothes, evening dresses; they had gone down to the docks and inspected the boat, one happy noontime, with Philip as escort. The lounges, the dining rooms, the deck chairs under awnings among palms, the fascination of narrow passages and high white boat decks, and above all, the charm of their own luxurious suite had opened up for Jocelyn a dream of delight she had never before experienced; she had told herself a hundred times that such fun could not be for her; that something would happen.

Now it had happened. Jealous, watchful, suspicious Mrs. Kimberley and the dissatisfied Sandy had brewed this nonsense between them, and Norma felt with a dismal prescience that in the end it would wreck the whole plan.

"I don't think consulting Mr. Fordyce would quite do," Mrs. Kimberley said. "Men don't see these things quite as women do, and he would probably think there was nothing irregular about it."

"There is nothing irregular about it!" Jocelyn said proudly, impulsively. To this Mrs. Kimberley made no audible answer. She narrowed her eyes and looked into space with a little half-smile on her lips. "Sure," Jocelyn went on, despising herself inwardly for wasting so much time on this woman, "surely a man may travel with his daughter and her governess without starting any scandal?"

"Oh, if it's Norma's governess, if it's Sandy, then there is nothing to be said." Mrs. Kimberley countered neatly. "If you speak to Mr. Fordyce about it," she added, "please don't quote me. I am merely suggesting to you that, as dear Mrs. Fordyce doesn't want Janet rushing out here to make trouble, it might be wiser to make some other arrangement. And now I must go back," said the visitor sweetly. "I was dummy, and I thought I'd just slip out here and give you a hint. You see, with a man as attractive as Mr. Fordyce, Miss Britton, it's very easy for a girl to put herself into a false position."

Graceful, with her smooth hair beautifully curled and her slender figure lovely in soft brown lace, she flitted away, and Jocelyn bitterly ruffled in spirit, went back to the younger set. She felt distracted and uncertain; to whom could she speak, who could advise her now?

Philip had seemed to take an interest almost as keen as the girls' own in the prospective trip. He had picked out a trunk and two bags for Jocelyn, and had had them marked with her initials. Their creamy stiff smartness was now displayed in Norma's sitting room, with Norma's own beautiful bags. Scattered about were new stockings, white shoes with their straps and silk laces still immaculate, hatboxes, frocks on hangers. Norma and Jocelyn had been looking at their new purchases before dinner, rejoicing in them, trying on a white taffeta coat or a broad-brimmed flowery hat.

Jocelyn knew that she herself was the main attraction of the whole plan for Norma. To travel for the first time in her life with an adored companion, with a friend young enough to enter into her interests, a companion whose honest enthusiasm would inspire her to enjoy things that once would have been boring to her, to feel no longer either shy or foolish: all this made a prospect that was new and intoxicatingly pleasant in Norma's scheme. She wanted always to be with Jocelyn, always to get Jocelyn's reactions before she was sure of her own, she loved her new role of the protected and self-controlled little princess who owed a duty to the world as well as to herself.

All this would be blasted if Mrs. Kimberley took Jocelyn's place; almost as completely blasted as if Sandy did.

Jocelyn confidently expected an outburst of fury from Norma at the first suspicion of a change of plan, and she dreaded it. She was working hard with her studies, anticipating holidays all the happier for her industry when the big ship sailed just a week from tomorrow.

On Saturday Norma went to a matinee luncheon with the Parker boys and their mother, and Jocelyn utilized her free hours for a trip to Sausalito. Aunt Nell would decide the point for her! Aunt Nell, who always thought anything the girls wanted to do was right.

She found the mistress of Maple Den in a foggy back yard, under the fresh new green of the trees, watching two sleeping grandchildren, and fortunately alone. Jocelyn, eager, frowning, scornful, appealing by turns, lost no time in putting her problem.

Her aunt was equally prompt and much more definite in her answer. Of course it was impossible Some other arrangement would have to be made.

Jocelyn sat facing her aunt with eyes that were tragic in a suddenly paled face. "But Aunt Nell, surely girls and their fathers and governesses are always traveling together!"

"Not always. It could happen, of course. But not with this girl. She's had considerable newspaper notoriety already. Her father's a rich and important man. And you're a pretty girl, Jocelyn."

"Aunt Nell, that's—that's nonsense! How can people be so—so vulgar and — and censorious and suspicious! It seems to me if they are, it would be just as good idea to show them that one didn't care a rap what they thought!"

"You can't do that, dear. Women—and men, too, for the matter of that—are always trying to do it. They go off somewhere on islands, or—"

"But Aunt Nell, this is just a man and his daughter going on a trip, and taking a companion for the daughter who isn't out yet!"

"Isn't out yet?" Mrs. Partridge said leniently. "Why, that girl is so far out in society that it's a nice question as to whether you can ever get her in far enough to have her come out again! She has been out since she was born. No, Jocelyn, you can't take chances with a girl like Norma Fordyce. You tell me she's happy now, that she's beginning to act like a human being. For heaven's sake keep her so. Don't get her grandmother and mother and father and this Sanderson woman all worked up again! Keep things quiet."

Jocelyn stared into space, a mutinous expression on her face. Presently she demanded resentfully, "Am I supposed to be in love with him?"

"Are you in love with him, Jocelyn?" her aunt asked quietly, when the angry words had had time to die away into the quiet, still foggy air.

"Aunt Nell!" the girl exclaimed, freshly indignant. But if she had more words ready they did not come; she looked at her aunt for a few seconds with her face reddening, and then covered her hot cheeks suddenly with her hands.

"If I see it, probably they see it," Mrs Partridge said dryly, and for a long time nothing more was said

After a while Jocelyn took down her hands and looked far away into space and laughed.

"How long have you known it, Jocelyn?"

"Oh, not long. I thought — I never dreamed anyone else would know. Everyone loves Philip. There are two or three women who are just—open, about it. I suppose of course it makes a difference! About the trip, I mean. Now don't say anything, Aunt Nell," Jocelyn said quickly, as her aunt made a movement as if she would speak. "Don't. I know what a fool I am! I though it would always be my secret, that no one but myself ever would know. You see," she went on, trying to laugh, "he's wonderful. He's quiet, but he's so definite! He put things into just a few words. He's — I don't know, he knows everything about international law and maritime law, and fishing and golf, and plays and London clubs and everything. I always used to think, in the office, that there was no one like him, but now—now—when he's so good to Norma and me, and so pleased that she's happy—"

"He bought you some lovely dresses for the trip, didn't he?"

"Well, not expensive dresses! The whole lot didn't come to what one of Norma's did. I'd have to have clothes, Aunt Nell. And I've never been to Honolulu!" Jocelyn ended, on a wail. "And now I'll never get there!" she added, despairingly.

"I suppose Miss Sanderson could not go?"

"Oh, that would ruin everything!" Jocelyn said, so frantic in her disappointment that her aunt realized suddenly how young she was.

"Well, you'll have to get out of it somehow, dear. To go would be to put yourself and Mr. Fordyce and the child, too, in a false position. Especially with the mother anxious to get hold of her and her fortune. It seems to me the best thing would be to go to Mr. Fordyce and explain, and ask him what he would suggest. If there were some friends of his going on the trip, who would join the party—"

"But that wouldn't be so much fun," Jocelyn interrupted, still unreasonable. "We had everything p-p-planned and we were going to do s-s-so many things—" And twistly her body about and putting her head down on the back of her chair, she burst out into bitter crying.

Mrs. Partridge, who had risen with a grandchild in her arms, looked down at the bowed bright head thoughtfully for a full minute. Then she rapped it gently with her thimble.

ECONOMY IS VITAL

An Important Statement By

THEODORE L. LUTZ

Your

For

Prosecuting Attorney

Billions of dollars will be spent in the next few years for national defense. The taxpayers of Richland county must pay their proportionate share of this tremendous cost. In order to do so without undue sacrifice it will be necessary for all units of local government to eliminate every item of unessential expense.

THEODORE L. LUTZ

Let's Look at the Record:

Prosecuting Attorney's Cost In Four Ohio Counties:

County	Population	1935	1936	1937	1938	1939
Licking	59,962	$ 7,776.02	$ 8,767.81	$ 8,710.15	$ 8,160.04	$ 7,665.55
Muskingum	67,398	7,818.21	7,975.07	8,509.76	9,339.03	8,185.29
RICHLAND	65,902	10,291.60	8,360.70	11,748.54	11,308.55	10,141.21
Tuscarawas	68,193	5,934.92	7,082.72	7,188.76	7,247.65	8,033.74

I not only promise to reduce the cost of operating the Prosecutor's office in Richland County but further pledge myself, if elected, to serve the people of this county in a competent, fair and courteous manner and at the lowest possible cost consistent with good public service.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Behind me, as I ran, I heard two voices calling, "Madge! Stop!" One was Lillian's, peremptory, wishing, I knew, to save me the chagrin of having my errand to my father prove fruitless, as she believed it would.

The other was Olga's, remorseful at the thought of having unwittingly urged me into something I ought not to do.

He knows my knock, and he opened the door himself, scrutinizing my face with his keen, yet loving eyes.

"What is it, my darling?" he asked. "I know you have something important to tell me."

"I am sorry, Father," I said. "I see I should not have come. But—I want to ask you if Olina may not know of the return of the emeralds, and perhaps see them when Philip does."

His eyes were fixed upon me, keenly questioning, and I felt a sudden kinship to an impaled fly.

"Why?"

"Because her mother wishes it so much," I said simply.

His face relaxed its sternness, and an indulgent smile quirked the corners of his mouth.

"You are a brave child," he said. "Why does her mother wish it?"

"Why does any mother wish to comfort her child?" I countered. "Olina is suffering—oh! I know it's all her fault, but her mother would like to cheer her, and the emeralds were one day to have been Olina's. So she wondered if you were set against Olina's seeing them. Please believe that she did not ask me to come on this errand. I came, indeed, against her protest and that of Lillian."

"I can well believe that," he said. "But—did you tell me that the emeralds were one day to have been Olina's?"

"Yes," I answered.

"Then," he said, striking one fist emphatically against the palm of the other hand, "she shall see them when her future stepfather does."

"Oh! Father!" I exclaimed, but he put up an adbonitory hand.

"Just a second!" he said. "I do not wish you to misunderstand me. I am not doing this to soothe Olga's maternal sympathies, although I sympathize with them, nor even to please you, my dear daughter, although you know that I willingly would lose no opportunity to grant a request of yours. But, unfortunately this is no time for sentiment. It suits my book, however, to watch that young woman's reactions when she sees the emeralds, and, particularly, when she realizes, as she must, that Olina intends to sell them so that she will not come, a penniless bride to Veritzen.

"For that reason," my father went on, "I do not wish her to suspect anything about the emeralds until I shall send for her. Tell her mother when you go back that I shall permit Olina to learn about the jewels, but not for an hour or two at least. Give Olga and Phil a few minutes together, while she tells him about the jewels — No!" — again he struck his fist into the palm of his hand —"I shall permit myself a box seat at his little drama, and you and Lillian shall also be audience.

"Tell Olga," he went on after a pause, "to say no word to Phil about the jewels having been found, that I want to show them to him myself. After they have had a few minutes together, have Lillian bring them over here, and you go to Olina's room, and fetch her over here also. Then, when they are all assembled, I shall exhibit the emeralds again. How does that plan impress you?"

"I think that might work out," I said, and he laughed as he bent to kiss me.

"I'm afraid you're incurable," he said, "but as I told you, this is no time for sentiment. Now go back to Olga, and have them all back here in ten minutes."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, October 30.

ANOTHER high-pressure and aggressive day is read from the forceful combination of potent planetary figures. Affairs may be expected to move decisively, strenuously, perhaps belligerently and drastically, toward the goal of great objectives. This probably in coalition with groups, societies or organizations of vast scope and power. Weighty matters of both business and private character may be in the balance, which may be swayed from one polarity or the other by the ability to exercise good judgment, sagacity and definite constructive programs. Precaution and tact are enjoined, since there are signs of strange or surprising angles should impulse or personal entanglement complicate or undermine promising circumstances. Love intrigues may be imminent and dangerous.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great activity and stress, in which ultimate issues depend decisively on the use of wisely directed energies and faculties toward constructive and progressive objectives. Powerful groups are involved, whose influence may be for public, humanitarian educational or social welfare, and these should be approached with finesse and practical plans rather than over aggressively or insistently. Enticing complications of a sentimental, romantic or intriguing nature may arise to nullify some very hopeful and promising conditions.

A child born on this day should have an abundance of energy and talents for attaining its highest ambitions, which may lie in practical channels or in great creative expression in cultural lines. It will be sound and dependable although having a subtle, intriguing and captivating personality.

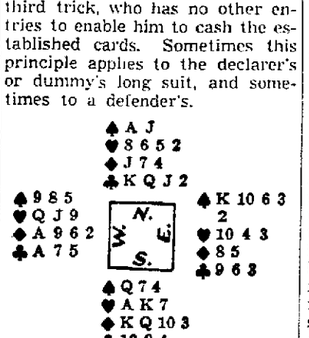
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE VITAL THIRD TRICK

Occasionally in suit contracts, but very frequently with No Trumpers, the result of the entire project depends upon somebody's ability to take the third trick in a particular suit, regardless of who wins the earlier ones. This is especially true when length in that suit is held by the taker of the third trick, who has no other entries to enable him to cash the established cards. Sometimes this principle applies to the declarer's or dummy's long suit, and sometimes to a defender's.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

West led the spade 9 against this bidding at two tables of a duplicate game. In each case the declarer, after study, played the J from dummy. Then came East's turn. In one instance he took the trick with the K and returned his 3, knocking out the A. The club 2 was led then to the 10 and A, West returning the spade 5 to declarer's Q. Then the diamond A was knocked out of West's hand. He had no spade to lead now, so South got the rest of the tricks, making his contract plus an overtrick.

At the other table, East put on his thinking cap. The spade 9 was from either doubleton or a trebleton. If the former, his play made no difference, but if West held three originally, East might set the contract by ducking, so that later he could take the third trick of the suit. So he played his come-on 10 on the spade lead. When West then won a trick with his club A, he led his second spade, knocking out the A. Then when West later won with his diamond A, he returned his third spade. East won this with the K and cashed the 6 and 3 of spades, setting the contract.

BUFFET SUPPER

CRESTLINE — A buffet supper was served at 6:30 Friday evening when Mrs. A. T. Bauer and Mrs. J. R. Reinhart entertained members of the Ersine club at their home on North Columbus street. Halloween decorations and appointments were used and guests present were Mrs. Margaret Gelbach and Mrs. O. F. Kime.

In rook games and a contest following the supper, prizes were awarded to Mrs. C. E. Iman and Mrs. Milton Reed, also to both guests.

Nov. 28th club will be guests of Mrs. J. F. McMahon and Miss Freada Miller.

Routine for Bleaching Neck

By MME. QUI VIVE

This is the season of the year when tan is supposed to pack up and depart. It may go all at once, which is satisfactory to the beauty seeker, or it may leave in patches, which makes her pretty mad, because she has no desire to look piebald. But of one thing you may be sure: tan on the neck sticks longer than tan on the face. This is so because the feminine portrait is coddled with nice creamy cosmetics and the neck isn't. If women were as fussy about necks as they are about complexions, we wouldn't see so many fiddle-string throats. Creaming and massaging tones the tissues and exercise the tiny fibers within the skin.

One isn't in the modern beauty picture if face and neck have a color divorce, one being creamy white and the other a horrid yellow. This condition prevails to a considerable degree. During the summer months, the neck is exposed to strong sunlight, and the rear portion may get even darker than the front. As the nape line is never inspected, double mirrors being seldom used, few women realize what a deplorable state it may be in. We mention this fact so that when the bleaching goes on it will go on all around and not stop just south of the ears, as usually happens.

We urge the applicants for beauty to make a complete job of the whitening ritual.

Here is the proper way to recondition a neck that has gone sallow.

Wash well with a bland soap and warm water, rinsing all the suds away. Dip a small towel in hot water, give the flesh a good steaming, holding the towel close with flattened fingers. To clear away surface discolorations, the dead cells must be softened so that they will fluff away. The epidermal coat is ever getting rid of debris, revealing a new surface. Three or four applications of moist heat will suffice. Use a soft towel gently for drying. Five minutes later apply a lotion made by combining equal parts of strained lemon juice and peroxide. Let it dry on. Just the time for a chapter or two of your mystery story.

Get out the good old massage cream and get busy, palming it in from the collar bones upward. At sides and back an up and down stroke can be used. Continue until the cream disappears, then use more. Work in as much of the emollient as you can.

While the cream remains on iron the flesh with an ice cube, the purpose being to harden and tone the tissues, so as to ward off softness, and to spur the blood streams to action. It is just as well to have foresight, to do little beauty tricks that will keep away the markings of the years. Women, all too often, don't fight beauty griefs until they are well-established, and then it may be too late.

Tomorrow's Problem.

CONTRACT FOR INSTALLATION OF METERS LET

Swisher To Begin Erecting Posts For Parking Devices Within Next Week.

Contract for the installation of parking meter posts, preliminary to the placing of the devices on downtown streets was awarded to James Swisher, contractor, of near Bellville, today by the Michael Art Bronze company of Covington, Ky.

The Michaels company was awarded the contract, several weeks ago, for the installation of 350 of the manually-operated nickel and penny meters for $16,-325, at the unit price of $49.50.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton was notified of the contract with Swisher today in a letter from the company in which officials said the posts had been shipped to the contractor yesterday.

The letter said Swisher would begin installation within the next week under the direction of the city engineer. The job is expected to be completed in one week, after which time the company will send its own representative to Mansfield to install the meters.

The installation will be made for a nine-month period during which the city will pay a monthly rental of $3.75 per meter with option of purchase at the expiration of the rental period.

Installation of the machines was authorized by city council three months ago as a means of promoting more adequate control of downtown parking. Revenue from the meters will be used only for traffic regulations.

Bricker Promises No New Taxes; Davey Hits 'Profits'

VERBAL BLOWS BY CANDIDATES ENLIVEN RACE

Governor's Former Law Firm Accused of Profiteering on State Business.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Although their contest is overshadowed by Ohio's importance as a presidential campaign battleground, the state's two candidates for governor are still swapping verbal punches.

Governor Bricker, Republican, in his weekly radio address last night, promised Ohio would not be "haunted" by the specter of higher taxes if he is re-elected and again review his economy record.

Former Gov. Martin L. Davey, his Democratic opponent, also addressing a radio audience, claimed the former law firm of Bricker was receiving "profits out of all reason" from representing clients with business before state boards and departments.

"In all the time that I have been interested in public affairs, I have never seen a more immoral procedure . . . His secretary as a member of that firm is an immediate beneficiary," Davey declared.

Bricker asserted that "the proposal of my opponent to wipe out one-third of the state's income (by repeal of the sales tax) would utterly destroy the present stability of the state government."

He claimed that more efficient management of the state liquor department during his administration will produce during his first term $4,350,000 more money for old age pensions.

He said Davey was attempting "to create a smoke screen for the purpose of diverting public attention from the record."

Davey charged that Bricker, during his former tenure as attorney general, "raided the closed banks with outrageous attorney fees." He accused the governor with an "appalling shakedown" of state employes for campaign funds and said Bricker's campaign chest was "several times larger" than any ever spent before in Ohio.

Wendell L. Willkie's third—and probably final—invasion of Ohio in his drive for votes highlighted today's activity. The Republican nominee appears at Jackson for two hours around noon.

One of the few direct debates between opposing candidates for major offices occurs in Columbus when Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland and Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster argue issues in their contest for U. S. senator.

It was announced that Democratic National Committeeman Charles Sawyer will go on the radio starting tomorrow for daily talks to instruct voters in the mechanics of this year's separation of the state and national ballots in Ohio. He will advise citizens to vote "the little ballot" which contains the presidential candidates ahead of the "longer" ballots.

Lewis, Hillman Stage Race For Steel Contracts

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President John L. Lewis of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and Sidney Hillman, labor coordinator for the national defense commission, were reported today to be engaged in a race to announce inauguration of collective bargaining negotiations with Bethlehem and Republic Steel companies.

CIO headquarters here buzzed with rumors that one or both of the "Little Steel" companies would announce their willingness to sit around a conference table with the CIO's steel workers organizing committee before the end of the week.

Reliable CIO sources confirmed reports that Lewis, who is seeking to win organized labor support for Wendell L. Willkie, has ordered that informal talks with the two companies proceed at top speed in an effort to open formal negotiations.

GANG MURDER

Cleveland's Body Found Near Automobile Plant.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Victim of "what looks like an old-fashioned gang murder," as police described it, Dominic Carbone, 46, was found dying today behind a motor car plant on Cleveland's East Side.

Police said Carbone was shot at least five times.

He was alive when found in East 117th street, between Euclid avenue and Mayfield road, but died in Lakeside hospital without telling a story. He was listed as a hod carrier.

Guardsmen Learn Modern Defense Tactics

It's quiet these days in the Richland county marriage license bureau after two big months. Clerks in the office attribute the drop to the belief among young men that it's too late now to escape the draft by getting married. With October nearly over, only 43 licenses have been requested in the county during the month. There were 75 applications in August and almost as many last month.

Postoffice officials couldn't make up their minds today whether the postoffice had more "headaches" with the annual Christmas rush or with last-minute mailing of circulars, post cards, and campaign literature by political candidates. For the past month a steady stream of "Vote-For-Me" literature has been pouring into the postoffice, and it is expected that this week-end it will be even heavier. General opinion at the postoffice this morning was that the only difference between the Christmas and campaign rushes was that the Christmas rush lasts a little bit longer.

MADISON OPENS BOND CAMPAIGN

Meetings Scheduled To Boost Passage of $290,000 Issue At Polls Next Week.

An intensive campaign in behalf of a proposed $290,000 bond issue is under way in Madison township, Olan LaRue, superintendent of schools, said today.

Meetings have been conducted or will be held before election in every community in the school district with Supt. LaRue and members of the township board of education outlining the purposes of the bond issue and urging voters to support it.

The bonds, which would be paid off over a period of 24 years, would provide funds for a 12-room addition to Madison high school, construction of new grade buildings at Woodville and Lincoln Heights, and improvements at the East Mansfield school.

The Madison school district has been divided into campaign areas and workers have been assigned to make house-to-house calls to ask voters to support the bond issue.

"We intend to contact every voter in the district in behalf of the bond proposal," Supt. LaRue said. "The reaction to the proposal so far has been very favorable," he added.

The Madison school paper will issue a special edition Thursday in support of the bonds, and copies of the paper will be distributed to every parent in the district.

The bonds, like the $550,000 issue passed in Mansfield two years ago, need a 65 per cent majority vote to pass.

Supt. LaRue pointed out that the interest rate on bonds now is the lowest in recent years, while war conditions are almost certain to boost the cost of building materials, making the cost of buildings higher later on.

POLICE SET UP 'BLACK LIST' FOR THOSE IGNORING TICKETS

Motorists with out-of-town licenses who take advantage of the immunity usually granted visitors to the city will find themselves "black-listed" on police records, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said today after two violators had paid a total of 17 traffic violation tickets.

Boyd Crall, now living in Mansfield, but with a Columbus address and license number, paid $11 yesterday on that many traffic tickets, all issued for parking in safety zones and restricted zones. David Fuller, whose car has a South Carolina license, paid $6 for being ticketed six times recently for parking overtime.

Bates said today that Mansfield, like most cities, has an unwritten courtesy rule for out of town and state cars, and that every consideration will continue to be shown them—so long as they do not become intentional repeaters.

"A lot of out of town motorists—especially salesmen—know this rule is in effect and they deliberately take advantage of it. From now on when a motorist proves to be a consistent violator of our city traffic rules, he will be placed on our 'black list' of habitual offenders on traffic regulations."

Bates said most out of town motorists have an idea that when they receive a traffic ticket in some city or town in which they are stopping, all they have to do is tear it up and it is forgotten.

"On the contrary, we keep the duplicate ticket for every one issued. Maybe a visitor comes to town regularly every week or every month on business and pays no attention to our parking regulations. He gets tickets but tears them up, because he thinks we won't go to the expense of trying to collect an out of town ticket. But he'll be back in town again and then we'll get him by having his car towed to a garage where it will be held until he pays for all of his tickets, including the towing cost."

Crall had 10 tickets against him before his car was found in a safety zone yesterday and towed to a garage.

NEW WEAPONS EN ROUTE TO OHIO TROOPS

Garand Rifles and Anti-Tank Guns Included In Arms Consignment.

(By United Press)

CAMP SHELBY, Miss.— Defensive tactics against the swift-moving mechanized implements of modern warfare were stressed today in the classroom schooling of officers of the 37th Ohio division.

The lesson that France learned tragically on the field of battle will be hammered into the minds of the men planning the strategy for some 9,000 Ohio National guardsmen now in federal army service for at least one year.

"Special emphasis is being placed on anti-mechanization combat in each of the eight classes for officers this week," Lieut. Col. L. C. Chalmers, Columbus, senior instructor, said.

As the officer's "school" went into its second day, word was received by Captain Neal Moler, acting ordnance officer for the 37th division, that the first consignment of modern weapons was en route to Ohio troops.

The new arms will include 1,500 Garand semi-automatic rifles, a dozen 37 mm. anti-tank guns, two dozen 60 mm. mortars, a dozen 81 mm. mortars and four 77 mm. guns on carriages.

"The artillery pieces are the most modern the war department has developed," Captain Moler said "We have not had this type of equipment before and our officers and men will require special training to handle it."

Courses in the officers' training this week include artillery, rifle use, signal communications, use of compasses, field glasses and maps (combat intelligence); operation and maintenance of motor vehicles, combat engineering, chemical warfare.

While 500 officers attended these courses preparatory to instructing the enlisted men next week, the men went through marching drills under the supervision of a skeleton staff of officers.

Tomorrow, the Ohio soldiers begin to move into the permanent quarters erected for them here. The moving will take a week or 10 days.

The "permanent" quarters are tents but they have skeleton wood frames, siding built up three feet, wooden floors and screens.

'MAN OF MONTH'

Mansfielder Honored by Farm Bureau for Sales Record.

Showing the best sales record in a nine-state area, Vance Clever, manager of the Richland county farm bureau, has been awarded the "Man of the Month" honor for September by the Farm Bureau insurance agencies.

Clever, who started to sell insurance only four months ago as a part of his farm bureau job, topped all other farm bureau insurance representatives in Ohio and eight other mid-western states in September.

He sold 43 automobile insurance policies, $14,667 worth of life insurance, $39,000 worth of fire insurance, and handled six general liability applications.

Clever, who lives in Springfield township, is the first Richland county man to win the honor.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

MISS MIDNIGHT'S DIARY:

Dear Diary: I am rather happy over the fact that there is a situation brewing in cafe society which threatens to equal, or even top, the James McKinley Bryant-Arline Judge-Ann St. George Thompson-Huntington Hartford mix-up, which I usually refer to as the Characters in Search of an Author.

Well, now the midnighters have a new set of characters, just as involved, just as amusing, just as confusing. Number one, and more or less central character, is Marie Spaulding, who carols at the new Fairway Yacht club and who for several seasons has been known as a "society songstress." Characters number 2 and 3 are her two current beaux, Tommy Chatfield (a ward of the Marquis de Cuevas) and Jack Dryden, 3rd, a member of the Yale crew. Character 4 is Amanda Cecil, who used to be Tommy Chatfield's best girl. Characters 5 and 6 are Jesse Spaulding, 3rd, who used to be Marie's husband, and Vivi Fairchild, who is currently Jesse's fiance.

A night-by-night description of their various activities goes something like this:

Saturday: Jack Dryden and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Livermore, jr., were at Marie's table when Tommy Chatfield entered, saw that the object of his affections was busy entertining friends, and sped out of the club. (Amanda Cecil had come early with Henry Daniels and hadn't seen Tommy Chatfield—but Tommy Mitchell, one of Chatfield's best friends, joined her table.)

Sunday: Amanda Arrived with Mitchell.

Jack Dryden came in with Jaro Fabry.

While Marie was rhumbaing with Dryden, Chatfield joined Amanda and Mitchell and wound up dancing with Amanda.

Monday: No game today.

Tuesday: With Dryden back at Yale, lookouts expected all to be serene and uneventful, but Jesse Spaulding (the ex-husband, in case you are having trouble keeping score) arrived with Vivi Fairchild and some friends, and Amanda, arrive with a large party.

Tommy Chatfield arrived, too.

While Marie sat down to say how-dey-do to Jesse and Vivi, Tommy Chatfield danced with Amanda.

After Amanda's party left, Tommy, Marie, Jesse and Vivi all would up together at the bar.

Wednesday: Tommy Chatfield arrived with Amanda Cecil.

Further results will be published as the crisis mounts and the winds shift.

Highlight of the festivities at Spivy's Roof Monday night was the appearance of Frank Parker, the tenor, with his new heartbeat, Bunny Water. Bunny, who is one of the town's most beautiful show girls, is also well over six feet tall — and she seemed almost too big for the little room, if not for Mr. Parker.

But Don Meade, the pint-sized horse pilot drifted in, and since he is as short as Bunny is tall, the room kept its equilibrium. Kept it, that is, until Carol Bruce came in wearing a complicated red hat that looked like three hats, one on top of the other.

Spivy tried to get Eddy Duchin to play the piano, and Eddy kept refusing. "I'll get him to play," Count Dekker whispered finally, and he sat down at the piano.

He played so badly that Duchin couldn't stand it. He just got up and displaced the Count and browsed through some Kern and Gershwin melodies for a whole half hour, while the room remained at pin-drop attention.

Mark Hellinger, a picture of plumpish, sun-kissed health, strolled in with his pretty wife, Gladys Glad. Gladys had on what seemed to be a style note: A quarter-moon veil that just covered her eyes. Very exotic.

All kinds of things were going on at El Morocco. For instance:

1—Tommy Goodwin, the golfer, arrived with a big silver cup he had just won at the Winged Foot Golf Club. Ciro, the wine steward, filled this with champagne and it was passed around the big round table like a loving cup.

2—Jack Oakie arrived in street clothes and got an attack of cold feet when he saw everyone dressed. "Oh dear, I could never go — there dressed like this," he said shyly. It took the combined efforts of Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and John Rerona to convince him not to flee.

3—The amusing Lady Douglas (wife of Lord Cecil Douglas), who has just arrived from England told a friend:

"Please introduce me as Mrs. Jones so I can have some fun."

4. Maury Paul, arbiter of cafe society, arrived carrying some unusual accessories, unwrapped. They were (a) one can of coffee; (b) one dented can of beans.

Maury had won them at a charity benefit.

5—Playboy Elliott Sperber drove up on the sidewalk under El Morocco's swank awning in a miniature station wagon, got out, and politely assisted from the strange little vehicle Jacqueline Knight, who was wearing a bunch of orchids almost as big as Elliott's chariot.

I told you the town is getting gay, didn't I?

CONTRACT FOR INSTALLATION OF METERS LET

Swisher To Begin Erecting Posts For Parking Devices Within Next Week.

Contract for the installation of parking meter posts, preliminary to the placing of the devices on downtown streets was awarded to James Swisher, contractor, of near Bellville, today by the Michael Art Bronze company of Covington, Ky.

The Michaels company was awarded the contract, several weeks ago, for the installation of 350 of the manually-operated nickel and penny meters for $16,325, at the unit price of $49.50.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton was notified of the contract with Swisher today in a letter from the company in which officials said the posts had been shipped to the contractor yesterday.

The letter said Swisher would begin installation within the next week under the direction of the city engineer. The job is expected to be completed in one week, after which time the company will send its own representative to Mansfield to install the meters.

The installation will be made for a nine-month period during which the city will pay a monthly rental of $3.75 per meter with option of purchase at the expiration of the rental period.

Installation of the machines was authorized by city council three months ago as a means of promoting more adequate control of downtown parking. Revenue from the meters will be used only for traffic regulations.
